OMAHA WINS KENTUCKY DERBY PRIZE

QUICK VERDICT ON NRA URGED BY CONGRESS

EXTENSION OF BLUE EAGLE MAY BE DELAYED

BY WILLIAM H. MYLANDER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, May 4 (AP)—Congressional leaders, split widely over NRA's future, looked definitely today toward the nine justices of the supreme court for guidance in determining how long and how powerfully the new Blue Eagle will reign.

Signs appeared that if the high court in a burst of speed, ruled on NRA's constitutionality before recessing for the summer early next month, congress would withhold its final say on the extension measure until this measuring stick was available.

Such celerity on the part of the court would be unusual in a case of this importance. It would not be unprecedented, however, and there were some who believed that the court, at its regular private meeting this afternon, had opened a discussion of the Schechter live poultry code case.

No Sign of Sentiment

Court members gave no sign as they filed into the session that would uphold either current speculation over a 5-4 decision in favor of NRA or predictions that it would be labeled unconstitutional. In either event, a quick decision would aid congress.

This was the capitol situation into which some administration spokesmen believed a court decision would dovetail.

The senate planned to take up NRA extension as soon as it disposes of the pending bonus legislation. The resolution reported by its finance committee would extend the present NRA law until next April, with intra-state business exempt from codes and with price fixing banned save in mineral natural resource industries.

But in the house, NRA committee hearings had not even begun and leaders said they did not expect final action for two or three weeks.

This program, they said, would enable them to take any corrective actions dictated by a court ruling. Also the house would be able to change the senate resolution—if it passes as now written—to for a two-year extension. In this event one senate leader predicted privately today that the senate would acquiesce.

Should the high court hold improper the delegation of authority to the president to prescribe codes governing wages and hours, there was much sentiment in congress for statutory enactment of such provisions through the Black 30-hour week bill or a more moderate measure.

Edwards Is Near Collapse, Doomed To Death Monday

Rockview, Pa., May 4. (AP)—In his death house cell, a few steps from the electric chair in which he will die early Monday morning Robert Allen Edwards, blackjack slayer of Freda McKechnie, spent hours today writing a letter to his mother.

In the early morning darkness deputy sheriffs took the 22-year-old killer from the Luzerne county jail over the mountains to this branch of the western penitentiary.

Edwards was near collapse yesterday for the first time since his arrest for the "American Tragedy" slaying of his neighborhood girl friend, an expectant mother. He wanted to marry another girl, the state said. His father, Daniel Edwards, his mother, nearly prostrate with grief, and a younger brother, bade him farewell. After they left him he fell upon his cot and cried.

No arrangements for the walk to the chair will be made until tomorrow.

MIDNIGHT RULE BEGINS MONDAY

All Licensees Outside Of Wayne County to Close at 12

Lansing, Mich., May 4 (AP)—John S. McDonald, chairman of the state liquor control commission, announced today that an order restraining all licensees outside of Wayne county from selling intoxicants after midnight will go into effect Monday.

Chairman McDonald had set the effective date of the order as "immediate" when it was issued. He said today the extension was given so that all licensees might be notified formally.

The order applies to every type of licensee including specially designated distributors, specially designated merchants, those who sell any kind of intoxicants for consumption or or off premises. Persons who made a business of delivering liquors or beer must cease to do so after the closing hour.

The decision to institute a midnight deadline for liquor sales was reached following a conference with members of the senate and house liquor committee late Friday.

McDonald said he hopes that and other new regulations put into effect will obviate "tinkering" with the present liquor law during this session. Other regulations include a decision to limit specially designated merchants to $1,200 profit a year and allow one person to hold that type of license and also a license to sell beer off premises if he sod desires to do so.

Wayne county was excepted from the order because of the volume of protests.

Carnival Reigns King In England

London, May 4 (AP)—Carnival reigned king in London tonight as another king—George V—stood on the threshold of the silver jubilee of his sovereignty.

Despite touches of rain, the largest throng since the Armistice Day celebration jammed the streets, turning traffic into seething, milling, laughing confusion.

More rain was threatened by grey skies, but the enthusiasm of the celebrants, many of them come from Britain's farflung domains, was undampened.

With the spirit of holiday already holding sway among his subjects, the king worked as usual today, holding however a special jubilee meeting of the privy council.

Nearly all work has been stopped until Tuesday, for Monday will be a holiday throughout the empire.

Baldwin Is Told To Support Fitzgerald

Marshall, Mich., May 4 (AP)—A resolution calling on State Senator Joseph A. Baldwin, Republican, to support Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald's legislative program was adopted at a meeting of the Calhoun county Republican committee here today. Speakers at the meeting declared Baldwin had not carried out pre-election promises to support the Fitgerald program. The Republican organization in Branch county, which is part of the ninth senatorial district, also was represented.

Senator Baldwin, informed at his office in Albion of the resolution, said that "the record shows I have supported the Fitzgerald program."

IDLE WORKERS MOVE TO OPEN TOLEDO PLANT

UNORGANIZED MEN SAYS UNION HAS MINORITY

Toledo, O., May 4 (AP)—Internal strife among 2,300 idle employes of the closed Chevrolet Motor company plant here appeared today in the strike which has involved approximately 33,200 automotive workers over the country.

Unorganized employes of the plant, where a strike was called April 23 by the United Automobile Workers' Union, circulated petitions drafted by a newly formed Independent Employes' association, asking the management to reopen the factory.

Nicholas Klein, counsel for strikers at the Chevrolet and Fisher Body plants at Cincinnati, said William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, told him by telephone that he was considering a strike of federation units in the automobile industry, unless the Toledo situation is settled promptly.

This was denied by Green, in Washington, but Klein reiterated his statement, declared "that's what was told to me." Klein added, "I suppose it was a matter of policy."

Edward F. McGrady, first assistant to Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, Thomas J. Williams, federal conciliator, and Francis J. Dillon, A. F. O. L. organizer returned to Detroit today.

Fred Schwake, business agent of the local union, told McGrady that he would not advise the union members to return to work after the union took no action on a proposal advanced by the conciliators last night.

Employe Injured

Dillon said the proposal he presented provided for the resumption of negotiations when the men return to work. Schwake and other union leaders repeated their demand that negotiations precede resumption of operations at the plant.

Details of the proposal were not made public.

McGrady, before leaving, said he believed there was "nothing further" they could do here.

Ray Northrup, an employe identified with the Independent Employes' association, was injured slightly today as he sought signatures to the petition within the union's picket lines surrounding the plant. Police said approximately fifty pickets pursued him and beat him.

Union strikers formed a picket line at the home of Fred Seiger, president of the new organization, and barricaded his doorway to prevent prospective petition

TOLL OF DEATH REACHES 2,000

Mount Ararat, Armenian Peak Rumbling; Fear Is Widespread

Istanbul, May 4. (AP)—Violent earthquakes spreading death and destruction over Turkey today were reported to have started Mount Ararat, the 17,000-foot Armenian peak where tradition says Noah's ark landed, rumbling with volcanic activity.

Reports said two more violent shocks in the series of quakes rocking that region had raised the estimated toll of dead and injured to 2,000. A total of 1,600 houses were said to have been destroyed, with 25 villages completely wiped out.

Ka Tass (official Soviet) news agency dispatch to Moscow quoted reports from Teheran, Iran (Persia), that 500 persons had been killed, with many injured and at least three villages destroyed in Mazanderan province by quakes continuing for several weeks.

Word that snow-covered Mount Ararat, culminating point of the Armenian plateau, was displaying volcanic activity was said to have spread new terror through the entire quake-stricken area.

Increasing the panic in the area was the unusual phenomenon of red water rushing through fissures in the earth, some of them said to be 30 feet wide, opened by the quakes.

Plan Isle Royale Park Association

Drive to Get Needed Funds to Buy Scenic Island Is Considered

Tri-State Conference Will Be Held in Escanaba on Sunday, May 12; Want to Save Area for Middle West Playground

Plans for launching a movement to secure funds by private subscription, congressional and legislative appropriations for the purchase of Isle Royale to assure its use as a National Park will be formulated at a Tri-State Conference, which will be held in Escanaba Sunday afternoon, May 12, under the sponsorship of the Wolverine Conservation association.

Karl J. Hammar, president of the organization, in announcing the plans for the meeting, stated that while the Wolverine Conservation association is making the preparatory plans for the conference, it will be necessary to enlist the aid of the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau, various chambers of commerce, conservation organizations, service clubs and other groups in Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota to tackle this huge task. He said that the organization of a "Buy Isle Royale for National Park" association had been suggested for the purpose of heading up the various groups interested in saving Isle Royale from lumbering despoilation, so that the Middle West may have its own federal park.

Start Logging Soon

The steamer Dagmar, operating out of Grand Marais, Minn., has brought the first load of supplies and ten men to Siskowit bay, where the Consolidated Power & Paper company will begin logging operations on Isle Royal. It is expected that logging will be in full swing by July 1 and that 200 men will be at work.

It is estimated that about $300,000 is necessary to purchase the land still remaining in the hands of the Consolidated Power & Paper company and other owners. If this land could be purchased from the owners and a deed to all the Isle Royale property turned over to the federal government, the National Park Service will immediately start improving the island and providing accommodations for vacationists. It is expected that if the island were made a national park more than a quarter million persons would be attracted to pass through the upper peninsula.

The establishment of Isle Royale as a national park is of much interest and value to the sister states, Minnesota and Wisconsin, since those areas also would receive the benefit of traffic to the scenic island on Lake Superior.

Action Already Started

The Wolverine Conservation association adopted a resolution at its last meeting, calling upon Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald to revive the Isle Royale National Park commission. This is an official state body, and the organization of a "Buy Isle Royale for National Park" association would not conflict with its work. The proposed association would serve to enlist the support of organizations and individuals in Wisconsin, Minnesota and other states that are interested in preserving Isle Royale in its natural wilderness state for the enjoyment of the recreation-seeking people of the world.

The Iron County Square Circle club, a conservation organization in the western part of the upper peninsula, also has adopted a resolution, urging the completion of plans to make Isle Royale a national park.

The Delta County Board of Supervisors also took formal action on the Isle Royale matter at its recent meeting. It is expected that other civic organizations in the upper peninsula will follow the same course this week.

Isle Royale is amply worth having, fighting for, protecting. The

MUSIC FEST IS GREAT SUCCESS

Mischakoff Thrills High School Musicians of Peninsula

Opening with a very delightful concert by Mischa Michakoff, world famous violinist and concert master of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, and ending with the combined choruses and orchestras of the 12 schools represented, the fourth annual Upper Peninsula music festival came to a very successful conclusion before a large audience in the W. W. Oliver Memorial auditorium of the junior high school last evening.

Approximately 600 student musicians from all points of the upper penisula gathered in Escanaba yesterday morning and spent the day playing, individually and collectively, and listening to the various organizations. The feature of the day for most of the participants was the morning concert of Mischakoff, who remained over from his concert here Friday evening especially to play for the benefit of those taking part in the festival. Playing on his famous Stradivarious violin, Mischakoff gave the students a musical program, thoroughly enjoyed by all, which probably will never be surpassed for a majority of them. His program consisted of: Sonata by Handel; Concerto by Mendelssohn; Bach-Guonod's Ave Maria, Gypsy Airs and as an encore, The Birds in the Woods.

Critic Judges

Professor Cyrus Daniel, head of the theory and composition department of the Lawrence college of music at Appleton, and Roy Williams, head of the school of music at Northern State Teacher's college at Marquette, were critic judges. Their criticisms were of a constructive nature and will be available to the supervisors of the various groups represented at the festival.

The evening program was a very fitting ending for the festival. This program was very well diversified and several organizations were outstanding. Among them being the Crystal Falls girls chorus, a girls octette from Iron River, the Iron Mountain mixed chorus and the Crystal Falls and Escanaba orchestras. The only solo artist of the festival was Leslie Grimord, of Iron Mountain, whose cornet solo was one of the outstanding features of the entire day. He played the difficult Stars In the Velvety Sky by Clarke with apparent ease and was given a tremendous ovation by the audience. He responded with Sol Mio as an encore. His tones were beautiful and his phrasing in the difficult passages and his triple tonguing indicated a natural ability.

Evening Program

The evening performance opened with the Crystal Falls girls glee club singing The Snow by Elgar, The Star by Rogers and Veni Creator Spiritus by Schmid. This group was very well balanced, had good tone qualities and were very responsive to their leader. The girls glee club of Kingsford gave a pleasing effect with their smooth singing in Calm Be Thy Sheep by Noble Cain. The Gladstone girls glee club presented a pleasing stage appearance in their numbers, Dawn by Curran and In the Garden of Tomorrow by Deppen.

Pleasant voices which blended exceptionally well were displayed by the girls' octette from Iron River, which rendered It Is May by Barraja and Spring Rain by Gould. The cornet solo by Leslie Grimord preceded three numbers by the mixed chorus of Porter school, of Alpha. This group sang, Hail! Smiling Morn by

"Omaha Harry" Is Put Under Arrest

New Orleans, May 4 (AP)—The federal government, after long and silent search, has arrested "Omaha Harry" Sawyer, the man it says was the "finger" in the Bremer $200,000 kidnaping.

Sawyer is being held here, awaiting arrival of a copy of his indictment from St. Paul, Minn., to which city he will probably be taken within the next few days.

"I haven't a chance to make the $100,000 bond," said "Omaha Harry."

Sawyer was arraigned before a federal commissioner today. He was brought here immediately following his arrest, which was accomplished quietly last night near Pass Christian, Miss., by department of justice agents.

JACK COOGAN HURT, FATHER DIES IN CRASH

THREE OTHERS LOSE LIVES AS AUTO TURNS OVER

San Diego, Calif., May 4. (AP)—Four persons were killed and Jackie Coogan, famous film juvenile, was injured late today in the sudden plunge of the Coogan car down a roadside embankment in the mountains, 55 miles east of San Diego.

The dead:

John Coogan, Sr., father of Jackie.

Junior Durkin, 20, juvenile actor.

Robert Horner, Los Angeles.

Charles Jones, foreman of the Coogan ranch at Pine Valley.

The injuries of Jackie Coogan, who skyrocketed to film fame as "The Kid" in Charlie Chaplin's picture of that name, were reported not to be serious, although a Catholic priest was called to his side.

He was taken by a passing motorist to the grocery store at Pine Valley and treated there by a local physician. Another physician was believed enroute by plane from Burbank with the young actor's mother.

Crashed Into Rocks

Patricia Ellis, film star who was at first believed to have been in the Coogan party, also accompanied Mrs. Coogan.

Jackie told M. E. Magee, the motorist who dragged him from the wreckage of the Coogan car, that the accident happened when they were forced from the road by a passing machine.

The Coogan car, he said, crashed into a pile of rocks, rolled over four times and came to rest right side up.

John Coogan, a former vaudeville headliner, Durkin, Horner and Jones apparently were killed outright.

The bodies of the Durkin boy and the elder Coogan hurtled from the car in its flight, while those of the others were pinned in the wreckage.

Durkin was born in New York City in 1915. His last screen appearance was in "Little Men."

Durkin's mother was Florence Edwards, stage actress. He made his stage debut at the age of 2 1-2 years as cupid in "Some Night," a musical comedy. At the age of 5 he played the son of an Indian girl in a revival of "The Squaw Man." He later appeared in the stage productions "H. M. S. Pinafore," "Poppy," "The Lady," "Clouds" and "Courage."

He came here in 1930, making his talking picture debut with Belle Bennet and John Halliday in "Fame." Afterwards he was in "Spanish Acres," "Recaptured Love," "Tom Sawyer," "Hell's House," Devil's House," "Secrets of the Blue Room," the revived "Perils of Pauline" and "Man Hunt."

Lansing Man Will Head War Veterans

Grand Rapids, Mich., (AP)—The Herald says that James R. Davis of Lansing, a Spanish War veteran, will be named commandant of Michigan soldiers home here replacing Col. Will C. Plue, incumbent.

Davis is a Republican. Plue is an appointee of former Gov. William A. Comstock, having held office for a year and a half.

William H. Zylstra, Republican chairman of the soldiers home board, refused to confirm or deny report and Plute said he knew nothing of steps to replace him.

Board held its monthly meeting here Friday and Saturday but adjourned without announcing any action on possible successor to Plute.

Mrs. Cal Coolidge Has Hair Bobbed

Northampton, Mass., May 4 (AP)—There was big news in Northampton today—Mrs. Calvin Coolidge has bobbed her brown hair.

For years the widow of the former president wore her hair in a neat, low knot and no change was noted in her coiffure until her recent return here from the south.

The former first lady has always worn a smart marcel.

Mrs. Coolidge was out of town today and friends who knew where she was wouldn't say.

PROGRAM TIED WITH RED TAPE

Public Works Delayed by Legal Knots; Experts Are Busy

Washington, May 4. (AP)—Lawyers in half a dozen government divisions sought today to loosen legal knots said to be delaying President Roosevelt's four billion dollar works program.

As the chief executive himself mingled work with pleasure in a week-end cruise down the Potomac, dozens of complications were disclosed to have arisen in the formulation of policies and plans to pursue the course charted by the works bill.

To cut a path through these complications and hold the slowly-moving works machine to a high-road of legality once it gains full momentum, a corps of legal experts have been called into service.

Some of the problems at which they were said to be working included:

Determination of a method by which the rural electrification division can keep its work from being restricted to those dozen states that have set up rral electrification athorities.

Wage Fixing Studied

Fixing definite policies to be followed by the rural resettlement division in buying lands and moving persons from farms that are not fertile to others that will produce.

Drafting executive orders which will clothe the applications, allotment, progress, rural electrification and grade crossing elimination divisions with proper authority to carry out their duties.

Definite figures to show the amount to which each state would be entitled under complicated formulas said down for distribution of funds for highway and grade crossing elimination work.

Among policies under consideration by President Roosevelt and his works triumvirate of Secretary Ickes, Frank C. Walker and Harry L. Hopkins, were the problems of how hard and fast a rule could be laid down to govern loans and grants on non-federal projects, what terms should be for the loans and how far the government might go in prescribing a system that would bring back most of the money.

Hopkins and his aides also studied the question of fixing wages for different sections of the country. The principle that has been laid down is that a security wage would be paid—enough to give the worker the necessities of life.

Since living costs vary in different sections, officials predicted that the wage would vary from the $50 a month figure first mentioned.

Flier Discouraged By Poor Weather

Mexico, D. F., May 4 (AP)—Discouraged by continued bad weather, Amelia Earhart rolled her red monoplane back into the hangar today and abandoned plans for an immediate takeoff on her proposed non-stop flight to New York.

She said she would hop off without further notice whenever conditions were right.

BEATS SPEEDY FIELD IN RACE AT LOUISVILLE

ROMAN SOLDIER IS SECOND, WHISKOLO THIRD

BY ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Churchill Downs, Louisville, Ky., May 4 (AP)—Gallant son of a gallant sire, William Woodward's Omaha stretched his long legs today on the cold, rain drenched surface of the historic Downs oval and galloped to a smashing victory in the sixty-first Kentucky Derby.

While a thoroughly soaked but highly excited crowd of nearly 50,000 spectators roared their acclaim, the big, gangling chestnut colt administered a sound beating to 17 rival 3-year-olds, including the crack filly favorite, Nellie Flag, and duplicated the triumph of his famous sire, Gallant Fox, the winner of the 1930 derby for the New York banker, whose colors Omaha also carried this afternoon.

Never Menaced

Running with much the same confidence his daddy showed five years ago, Omaha steered clear of the early jam, took command on the back stretch and never was seriously menaced in the long stretch drive despite a game finish of the powerful black colt Roman Soldier, the Texas Derby winner.

A length and a half separated Omaha and Roman Soldier at the finish with an outsider, Whiskolo, hanging on to take third money. Whiskolo was four lengths behind Roman Soldier, but a length and a half in front of Nellie Flag, the capricious filly which suffered from early interference and barely took fourth money, by a head, from Blackbirder.

The rest of the big field was well scattered, with most of the heavily played choices nowhere. Plat Eye, after setting the pace for a half mile, finished eighth. Commonwealth, supposed to be at home in the somewhat slippery going, was tenth and Today, C. V. Whitney's erstwhile favorite, finished twelfth after weakening badly in the stretch. Col. E. R. Bradley's Boxthron, the hope of the "hard-boots" and rated a strong contender, never was in the contention and finished 16th, beating only St. Bernard and Weston.

It was a dismal, cheerless day, with a crowd of disappointing proportions shivering in the coldest weather the derby has experienced in a blue moon, but it was a grand victory for Omaha and the colors of William Woodward's belair stud.

On the track where the great Earl Sande rode Gallant Fox to triumph five years ago, "Wee Willie" Saunders of Bozeman, Montana, piloted the Fox's son to victory with all the finesse and resourcefulness of a veteran, instead of a youngster getting the thrill of his first derby conquest.

The outcome wrote new derby history. Omaha is the third son of a derby winner to capture the blue ribbon prize of old Kentucky but the span of five years in which the latest father and son victory has been achieved is a new record. Seven years separated the first pair, Halma in 1895 and Alan-A-Dale in 1902. The triumph of two of the Bradley stars, Bubbling Over and Burgoo King, were six years apart, 1926 and 1932.

Second choice in the betting at 4 to 1, Omaha paid $10 to win for each $2 ticket in the mutuals, as well as $5 to place and $3.80 to show. The sturdy son of Gallant

Senate Expected To Approve Bonus Payment Measure

Washington, May 4 (AP)—Democratic leaders conceded privately today the senate would vote full cash payment of the soldiers bonus next week, despite open warnings of a presidential veto.

Still planning to continue their fight over the week-end for the Harrison compromise, which the president is reported willing to sign, the administration leaders today apparently gave up hope of mustering sufficient strength to win.

The only question seemed to be whether the senate would favor the inflationary Patman bill, already approved by an overwhelming house majority, or the American Legion sponsored Vinson measure providing for payment of the certificates out of ordinary revenues.

Back of the bonus measure, a log jam of administration legislation is pending in the senate. Democratic chiefs, with congress in its fifth month and with only one major Roosevelt measure—relief—enacted, appeared anxious today to get rid of the bonus proposition.

SOLONS DEBATE AT PITTSBURGH

Robinson and Dickinson Argue Pro and Con On New Deal

Pittsburgh, May 4 (AP)—An assertion that an "unholy alliance" exists between senate "old line Republicans and radicals" to harrass the administration was made tonight in the G. O. P.-new deal debate by Senator Robinson, the Democratic floor leader.

Hitting back at recent Republican criticisms and contending the United States "is well on the road to industrial recovery," the Arkansas senator spoke after Senator Dickinson (R-Ia) earlier had opened the two-man debate before the same meeting with an assertion that under Roosevelt the people had "lost their sense of security."

The Iowa Republican, mentioned by some as a possible presidential candidate, contended that confidence had been lost because of "indecisive" administration policies being directed by men "who were in key positions of the Progressive, Socialist party of 1924."

"Amen Corner"

Addressing a group he labeled as the "amen corner," Robinson said Republican standpatters in the senate had "given counsel and encouragement to reckless and bitter attacks by radicals on the administration and the president in the hope of embarrassing the former and diminishing the popularity of the latter."

"There are rumors," he added, "that radical propaganda is being financed in part with funds contributed by conservatives. This unholy alliance demonstrates the extremity in which those who seek to revive the anaemic old elephant find themselves. Realizing that their patient is dangerously ill, Republican healers are resorting to strange remedies and practices."

Referring to recent G. O. P. plans for regional meetings to discuss party strategy, Robinson said these were "manifestly to postpone the internal conflicts certain to result from efforts at country-wide coordination."

He referred to former President Hoover as the "hermit of Palo Alto" who is still advocating the "fabian policy of his late and forgotten administration."

In speaking of "new deal developments," Dickinson had asserted that "because of government interference in industry, in finance and in agriculture, we find that confusion has increased and confidence diminished."

The white-haired Iowan said despite that $17,500,000,000 had been expended in experimentation, relief rolls had increased, finances become uncertain and banks were "gorged with federal securities."

signers from entering.

Police forced the pickets to remove the obstruction and to reform their picket line on the opposite side of the street.

Seiger said he expected to increase the number of signatures on the Association's petition from "790 to about 2,000."

"We will find out how many men actually belong to the union," he said. "If the employes had been allowed to vote we would have been back to work now.

"The plant was not closed by a strike but a lockout forced by a small minority of employes belonging to the union. The union is causing employes a loss in wages that could not be equalized in two years even on the increased wage scale offered by the company in its counter - proposals."

"No other corporation in the United States is giving its employes a chance to re-invest their earnings in the company," he said. "If we kill the goose that lays the golden eggs, we are crazy."

SHIFT TO DETROIT

Detroit, May 4 (AP)—Weary negotiators in the automobile strike returned here today to discuss new compromise proposals after representatives of strikers in the Toledo plant of the Chevrolet Motor Co. plant again rejected a proffered armistice.

William S. Knudsen, executive vice-president of General Motors, met with federal conciliators and American Federation of Labor representatives to discuss a settlement proposal drafted by Charlton Ogburn, counsel for the AFL Auto Workers' unions.

Edward F. McGrady, first assistant secretary of labor, Thomas J. Williams, federal mediator, and Francis J. Dillon, A. F. L. organizer, also took part in the conference which they hoped would end strikes and shutdowns in a score of plants which are costing the 33,000 men affected more than $800,000 per week in wages.

Gore Says Bonus Should Be Paid From PWA Funds

Boston, May 4 (AP)—The Boston Transcript says Senator Thomas P. Gore, of Oklahoma, suggested today the soldiers' bonus be paid with $1,700,000,000 from the $5,500,000,000 work relief funds which the president now has available.

Gore made the suggestion, the Transcript says, with the reservation that he felt "the soldiers, of all people in the country, should set an example in times of economic distress by not insisting upon the payment of an obligation which is not due until 1945."

However, with apparent reservations also as to the distribution of enormous funds for relief, the paper says, he figured that application of the relief funds to payment of the soldiers would be advisable for three reasons; that it would not add to the public debt; the appropriation is already made, and it would mean the distribution of money to prime the economic pump.

Gore was here to address a meeting of the Sentinels of the Republic.

Fox and Flambino, winner of only $3,850 as a two-year-old, collected $39,525 net for his first 3-year-old conquest. The race carried a gross value of $49,950, of which $6,000 went to Roman Soldier, $3,000 to Whiskolo and $1,000 to Nellie Flag.

Costly Interference

Roman Soldier, backed so heavily that the black colt went to the barrier third choice, returned $6.40 to place and $4.20 to show in the mutuals. Whiskolo's show price was $3.40.

Interference at two early stages of the race proved costly to the chances of Nellie Flag, the tempermental filly which displaced Today as the derby favorite over night after it developed the popular C. V. Whitney colt had pulled up a trifle lame, with a heel bruise. Nellie would have returned on $3.80 on the dollar if she had shown the way home to her gentlemen rivals, but she was never able to gain a contending position after being bumped around impolitely at the start.

It was no day for ceremony anyway, and the colts showed no disposition to adopt chivalrous methods and "see Nellie home" the way they did the filly's dam Nellie Morse, in the 1934 Preakness. Nellie Flag suffered sharp interference from Plat Eye carrying the colors of Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree stable, soon after the start as the big field seemed almost to converge, funnellike, for the first run down the stretch.

The Calumet Miss again was impeded, rounding the first turn, and Jockey Eddie Arcaro was unable to get his charge out of close quarters until the last quarter. It was then too late for Nellie to do anything about the situation, with Omaha, winging along fully seven lengths in front of her, but she finished gamely to land the last money position.

Whether or not Today suffered the effects of his foot injury, the result of either kicking or stepping on some object in yesterday's workout, the Whitney entry never showed anything like the form that carried him to triumph a week ago in thet Wood Memorial Jamaica track. Today started well, escaping interference, but began to fade on the backstretch and weakened badly in the stretch, finishing a full brassie shot behind Omaha.

It was another severe jolt for the son of Harry Payne Whitney. The youthful scion of the famous racing family was bitterly disappointed in 1931, when the renowned Equipoise was scratched on the day of the derby, won that year by Twenty Grand. Today was apparently primed to make a front running bid for this year's big prize but an accident again frustrated the hopes of his owner, C. V. Whitney.

Equally disappointing but for less apparent reasons were the performances of Plat Eye, Commonwealth and Boxthron, all well back in the betting, whereas Roman Soldier and Whiskolo along with the lightly regraded Psychic Bid exceeded previous expectations by running well all the way.

It took Starter Bill Hamilton only two and a half minutes to get the big field—four short of the derby record—lined up and away to the echoing roar of "they're off." It required even less than that for Omaha to demonstrate his superiority over the rest of the field. The son of Gallant Fox negotiated the mile and a quarter in 2 minutes, 5 seconds, good but not not brilliant by comparison with Twenty Grand's derby mark of 2:01 4-5.

Plat Eye Takes Lead

Omaha, as well as Roman Soldier, ridden by L. Balaski, benefitted from being steered clear of early interference. Passing the judges stand for the first time Plat Eye had taken the pace setting position from St. Bernard with Boxthron and Psychic Bid next, Omaha ninth and Roman Soldier eleventh.

Boxthron moved into second place, behind Plat Eye, at the half mile mark, with Whopper running third, Psychic Bid fourth, Omaha coming up to fifth and Roman Soldier now eighth, closely following Today and Nellie Flag. In the long run down the back stretch Saunders made his first real move with Omaha and the son of Gallant Fox responded, taking the lead and quickly opening a gap of two lengths, with Whiskolo passing the faltering Plat Eye to take second position, and Roman Soldier fourth.

At the turn into the last stretch, Omaha was a good length and a half in front of the oncoming Roman Soldier. The crowd roared mightily as the black colt then came up to Omaha's flanks and for a few seconds, appeared capable of making it a close finishing drive. However, the Woodward star still had plenty in reserve and moved away again in the last sixteenth to make the margin a convincing length and a half. Whiskolo meanwhile was unable to match Roman Soldier's finish but hun gon gamely to lead Nellie Flag home, with the rest of the field well spread out.

The complete order of finish showing the margins separating the horses, follows: Omaha, first by a length and a half; second, Roman Soldier, four lengths; third, Whiskolo, length and a half; fourth, Nellie Flag, head; fifth, Blackbirder, two lengths; sixth, Psychic Bid, four lengths; seventh, Morpluck, head; eighth, Plat Eye, one length; ninth, McCarthy, there lengths; tenth, Commonwealth, two lengths; Eleventh, Sun Fairplay, three lengths; twelfth, Today, six lengths; thirteenth, Whopper, length and a half; fourteenth, Bluebeard length and a half; fifteenth, Tutticurio, one length; sixteenth Boxthron, two lengths; seventeenth, St. Bernard, half length; eighteenth, Weston.

W. Waldo Shaver, Scout Executive, Here On Monday

W. Waldo Shaver of St. Louis, deputy regional executive, will attend a Boy Scout meeting in Escanaba Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the scout headquarters at the city hall. All scout leaders, troop committeemen and others interested in scouting are asked to attend this meeting.

Yesterday 22 Boy Scouts of Escanaba in charge of Commissioner Jack Floyd and Troop Leaders Francis Flagstadt, Ronald Sullivan and Tom Seymour, working jointly with an ERA crew planted 6,000 trees in the city woodlot at Soo Hill. The work was done under the supervision of Forester Noble Kee.

Doctor Charged With Two Murders

Enid, Okla., May 4 (AP)—A second murder charge, accusing him in the death through an illegal operation of Hermoine Fowler, 20-year-Oklahoma A. and C. college co-ed, was filed today against Dr. Guy E. Brewer, already held on a similar charge in the death of another young woman.

The information was filed by County Attorney Roy Holbird and signed by Lieut. Robert Huston, special investigator for Gov. F. W. Marland, whose secret investigation preceded filing of the original charges.

Miss Fowler died at her home in Red Oak, Okla., June 27, 1934.

The first charge filed against the physician was based on the death of Mrs. Doris Jones, 20, the mother of two children.

Holbird said his investigation had disclosed two additional deaths of young women from illegal operations. He said more charges would be filed.

Russia's Aerial Strength Revealed As Very Powerful

Moscow, May 4 (AP)—Russia's full military strength in the air was officially revealed for the first time today.

The Soviet now has more than 3,000 military planes, it was announced, with more than 800 concentrated in the Far East.

The May Day demonstrations revealed further than the Soviet's oft vaunted strength in tanks was no empty boast.

Thousands paraded at key Russia cities, 500 at Moscow, hundreds in the Far East and 2,030 at eight other key Russian cities.

In sharp contrast to the May Day display of military power was the situation in 1921 when, General Vasily Blucher, chief of the Far Eastern army, said in an address at Chita, Russia had only three tanks and four airplanes in the Far East.

The Soviet's Asiatic forces now have been "tremendously" increased, Gen. Blucher said, and may be counted on to cope with "a first class army of imperialists."

Russian eggs can be preserved for 12 months due, it is said, to the way the hens are allowed to run wild and forage for themsedves. The hens get tough, but so do the eggs.

MUSIC FEST IS GREAT SUCCESS

Spofforth, Crusader's Hymn and Parade of the Wooden Soldiers by Jessel. The Iron Mountain mixed chorus presented one of the finest choral renditions of the evening with their Weary, My Heart With Thee Doth Plead, Cherubim Song by Tchiakovsky and Morn of Beauty by Sibelius. This group was exceptionally well balanced, especially in the bass sections and had very pleasing soft qualities.

Difficult Numbers

The Iron River orchestra, featured by flute and cellist soloists who were very good, played Intermezzo from L'Arleseinne Suite by Bizet, Handel's immortal Largo and the March from Athalia by Mendelssohn. The Escanaba and Crystal Falls orchestras followed with two difficult numbers very well rendered. The Escanaba group played Finlandia by the famous Finnish composer, Sibelius, while the Crystal Falls group gave the well known Der Freischutz by Von Weber. The latter orchestra featured a predominance of strings, of which the cellos and violas were outstanding.

The finale of the evening was the massed boys chorus and the huge massed orchestra. The boys sang The Hunter's Loud Hallo by O'Hara, Pirate's Song by High and the popular Bells of St. Mary's by Adams. The massed orchestra played the well known March from Tannhauser by Wagner, Country Gardens by Percy Grainger and Italians in Algeria by Rossini.

Afternoon Program

The afternoon portion of the program opened with two selections by the mixed chorus of Gladstone. The chorus was very rhythmical and showed good intonation and sang Gloria Patri by Palestrina and The Glory Train by Noble Cain. The mixed chorus of Escanaba, showed very good tonal qualities and almost perfect diction in their two numbers, Remember Now Thy Creator, Adams, and Beautiful Savior, Christiansen.

A piano duet, Our School Colors played by Loretta Groleau and Patricia Tobin of Nahma, was followed by three selections by the girls glee club of Bates township schools who sang, The Little Dustman, Brahms; Calm As the Night, Bohm; and Caprice Vennois, Kreisler. A well balanced girls glee club from Escanaba displayed a sweet tone in Shepherd's Lullaby, Harris; and a selection from the Mikado, Gilbert and Sullivan opera which will be presented here next week.

String Ensemble

The Crystal Falls girls glee club made a very good stage appearance sing Calm As the Night, Bohm, and Old King Cole, Forsyth. The girls quartet from Crystal Falls, an attractive group sang Hymn to the Night, the Sonata Appassinata of Beethoven. The junior string ensemble from Escanaba, composed of grade school girls, played two selections, Aria and Vivace from LaFavorita by Donizetti and Military March, Christian Kriens and their display of rhythm was equal to that of most of the older groups.

The All Saints orchestra, of Gladstone, playing Attila, a Hungarian overture by Karoly, and The Alpine Glow, a tyrolian fantasy by Giessler, was followed by the Iron Mountain orchestra. Featuring a very good brass section, this group played Liszt's Liebestraum, March Fantastique by Bizet and Poem by Fibich. The Gladstone high school orchestra played the March from Athalia by Mendelssohn and the Intermezzo from L'Arlesienne Suite by Bizet. The girls choruses from the various schools joined together to sing O Can Ye Sew Cushions by Bautock, Morning Invocation, Buch and Sandman Am a Softly Coming by Dvorak. The afternoon program was concluded by three selections by the massed mixed chorus, To Music, Saar; Built On a Rock, Christiansen; and Emitte Spiritum Tuum by Schnetky.

OLD PALS WAGE WAR OVER NRA

Senator Bob LaFollette Hurls Harsh Words At Don Richberg

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
(Daily Press Washington Correspondent)

Washington—A couple of old pals met when Donald R. Richberg, the celebrated "assistant president," and Senator Bob LaFollette of Wisconsin clashed during the senate NRA investigation.

Not so long ago, those keen minds were teamed. That was before the progressives gave Richberg up as a fallen angel.

Richberg, a labor lawyer and brilliant protagonist of progressive thought, fought many of the old fights at the side of the senior Senator LaFollette. While the old man lay sick in 1924, Richberg and young Bob went to Cleveland and ran the third party convention which nominated their common leader for the presidency.

Next year, when "old Bob" died, his son succeeded him as senator and Don Richberg was his chief legislative adviser. Between them, they furnished much of the brains of the progressive movement in the Coolidge and Hoover days.

But now no one hurls harsher questions at Richberg than LaFollette, who with the suave Costigan of Colorado, represents on the committee the thought of progressives that Richberg has become an apologist for administration and conservative policies.

In past years Richberg has been agin" the government. Now he's a large part of it. Progressives have been both for and ag'in', mut become increasingly sour.

Scorched by Young Bob

LaFollette describes NRA codes as a series of "horse trades" with industry, "with all the David Harums on the other side of the fence." This is a nasty crack, because Richberg was one of NRA's two chief traders.

LaFollette thinks Richberg is devious and evasive. He and Costigan want to know how, with NRA on the job, unemployment—according to NRA figures—rose from 10,600,000 at the end of 1933 to 10,830,000 at the end of 1934.

Then they throw figures back and forth at each other to prove alternately that NRA has been a grand success and a grand flop. They also prove that they aren't any reliable figures on unemployment or many other figures to demonstrate what NRA has and hasn't done.

(A prying newspaperman at about this point discovers that NRA has given the senators a booklet of charts which do not include many of the most significant discoveries and interpretations by NRA's research and planning division.)

A Neat Cover-Up

For instance, the study showing that wages paid in 1934 were but 60 per cent of the 1926 amount, whereas dividends and interest stood at 150 per cent.

(It's a booklet especially prepared for the committee and further prying reveals a seemingly deliberate effort to avoid letting the committee understand too much.)

Richberg proves to be an able advocate. But LaFollette's recitation of the original announced aim of NRA—promotion of fullest use of production facilities, increased consumption, spread of purchasing power and so on—reminds everybody that the early glorious visions of General Johnson have yet to be fulfilled.

Notables in Cast

Those two old pals, Don and Bob, are the stars of the show. But the supporting cast is notable.

The committee room is full, mostly of high NRA officials—including Chairman Clay Williams, smoking one of the cigarets his company makes, and John L. Lewis of the miners' union and NRA labor advisory board.

The committee includes many of the more prominent senators—Pat Harrison, chairman and administration leader; Hugo Black, sort of a daddy to NRA because the administration invented it to sidetrack his 30-hour week bill; Joe Cuffey, whose political puissance landed him on the committee despite his newness; Jim Couzens, synical about all this NRA business; Arthur Capper, bright and alert; and Gerald Nye, who helped promote the investigation.

Then there are three would-be sharp-shooters—Dan Hastings, Harry Byrd, and "Blind Tom" Gore, all of whom would be more effective if they weren't so densely ignorant about NRA.

Probably I owe it to Don Richberg to report his good-natured protest, after the session, about a story I recently wrote. He said:

"When I refuse 40 to 60 invitations for speeches every month and make only two or three, and you write that I have a 'mania for making speeches,' I want to rumple your hair."

Electrification Surveys Planned In Delta County

BY PAUL MAY

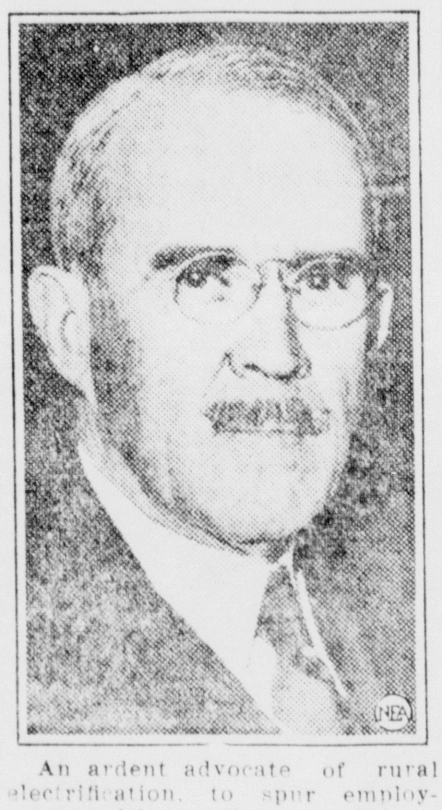
Washington, D. C., May 4—An organization is now being set up in Washington which will determine how much Delta county will receive from the $100,000,000 set aside for rural electrification.

With the appointment of Morris L. Cooke, Philadelphia lawyer and engineer, to take charge of the work itwas indicated that a survey of the electrification needs of Delta county will be undertaken within the next month.

Mr. Cooke has not yet, however, obtained office space and the office force is still in the making, but the president has indicated that he wants the work speeded up and electrification, with the aid of the federal government is in line with the administration's allignment against private power companies.

The private power companies are being used, however, in seeking preliminary data concerning county needs. They have been sent questionnaires to determine many technical and other facts. Some answers to these questionnaires will point out some of the electrification needs of Delta county. These questionnaires have been sent out by the federal power commission.

The commission is checking such items as points where power connections for rural electrification can be made to existing lines without too much "stepping down"; density of rural population; need for rural power, and other facts tending to show prospective markets for power in rural areas.



An ardent advocate of rural electrification, to spur employment and better living conditions, Morris L. Cooke, above, Philadelphia power expert, may head that division in the work-relief drive. Cooke has been vice chairman of the power policy commission and was chairman of the Mississippi valley planning committee.

Tahquamenon Chapel Nearing Completion

Newberry, Mich.—One summer day in 1879 A. M. Chesbrough, Saginaw valley lumberman, came up the Tahquamenon River from Whitefish Bay searching for white pine. He portaged the Little and the Big Falls and made his way into the section now known as Luce county. At that time only the Indian knew the river well, using it for The Pathway for the People which the Poet Longfellow mentioned in his poem "Hiawatha."

The Catholic and the Methodist missionary knew it also for the Christian church came into this wild country on the wake of the fur business and before the lumbering started. Chesbrough, and his family, doubtless exerted more influence than any other excepting maybe, Robert Dollar who founded the now dwindling village which bears his name. But Dollar, for the most part, cut his timber at the mill about which the village formed. Chesbrough built his saw mill at the mouth of the stream, at Emerson, where the ruins still attract the eye forming darkly against the sky over the bay. And Chesbrough "drove" the stream for years. D. N. McLeod, one of Newberry's most valued citizens, who died a few years ago, was one of the last lumbermen in this section to send the pine down to the Emerson mill.

Will Dedicate Chapel

At Hulbert, overlooking the Tahquamenon Valley, will be dedicated sometime in September, a beautiful chapel which will not commemorate those old days but will bind them to the present in service and in sentiment. The Tahquamenon Chapel has arisen on the south bank of the river. It is constructed of Lake Superior shore stone for foundation and for the tower, spruce logs form the walls, the ceiling and partitions will be of knotty pine and it will serve about a dozen denominations in the little town and surrounding territory. It represents not only the best of the colorful past but the dreams and hopes of a people and of their pastor, Alvin Doten, Methodist missionary, who serves nearly two dozen congregations.

The other day the roof was completed. The best shingles to be obtained anywhere were purchased and these are laid five ways to a row. The carpenters, all local men, were taken to Iron Mountain to see a building on which that particular type of work was done.

Pennies Built Church

Pennies have gone into the construction of the Tahquamenon Chapel, the promises of children and of students. "Mile of Pennies" campaign started off the fund from which the chapel is being built. Catholic and Protestant have joined in contributing as a list of those who gave the windows will show. "Rev. and Mrs. Fred H. Townsend" reads one lovely window. This was given by their son and his wife, the Rev. and Mrs. F. Merle Townsend of the Newberry M. E. church. The elder Townsend is still a preacher in a downstate town. C. B. Beaulieu and Dr. George Swanson of Newberry, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Tuxworth of the Sault, the Wash Dewitt family, Charles Taylor family, C. J. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Freeman, the Warner family have all donated windows. W. L. Campbell and family have placed a window in memory of Mrs. A. J. Dewitt. Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hunter have one and the Hulbert Ladies Aid placed one in honor of their president, Mrs. V. Cummings. Two others were donated by "friends."

The Tahquamenon Chapel is not yet completed. The ceiling pine will cost around $100 and the stone tower which contains the fire place and will hold the bell, has not yet been started. This will cost around three or four hundred dollars. But that money will come, just from where, the secretary of the chapel fund, Toivo Lind, the treasurer, Sol Freeman and Mr. Doten, do not know. But in September, when the scarlet banner of autumn is waving in the anual color celebration on the Tahquamenon the people of Hulbert will hold a jubilee. Benches will be set up in the grove about the church, speakers will come from afar, there will be singing and speaking and the saying of prayers, and the Tahquamenon Chapel will be dedicated to the memory of the past and to the service of the people of the present and future.

WRONG INFORMATION

Esign, Michigan

Escanaba Daily Press
Escanaba, Michigan
Gentlemen:

In your press of Friday May third, there was a news item on a bazaar which the Ensign Parent-Teachers Association is giving. The item stated that the funds derived from this undertaking were to be used for purchasing playground equipment for Stone Anderson's School. Whoever gave you this information did so in error and their error may create such a misunderstanding that the whole project may fail.

The purpose of this bazaar is to raise funds with which the association intends to buy a unit of equipment for all the schools, that is a unit will be installed at the three schools in Ensign Township. You can readily see that the people whose children are attending any school other than Stone Anderson's School after reading the news item will be reluctant to cooperate with the P. T. A.

I will very much appreciate a correction on this item.

MUNICIPAL FOREST

Boy Scouts, members of the U. S. Forest Service staff and others interested in conservation participated in the tree planting program at the city wood lot in Soo Hill yesterday.

While the number of trees planted was comparatively small, the event is of considerable significance. It marks a step in the establishment of municipal forests in this community, which will serve as a forceful educational project in teaching the public the importance of forests to the economic life of this region.

The upper peninsula is mainly dependent on its mines and forests. The iron and copper ores are an exhaustible resource, while the forests may be replenished. Centuries from now it is likely that the mines of the upper peninsula will be exhausted, but our forests, under the careful, scientific supervision of the U. S. Forest Service, will be perpetuated to be logged off on selective basis so that lumbering will never cease.

Associated with the forests very closely is the development of our recreational possibilities through the increase of our fish and game and other facilities for vacationists. The U. S. Forest Service, state conservation department, Upper Peninsula Development Bureau, chambers of commerce, conservation clubs and other agencies are doing much to accomplish this objective.

Escanaba's municipal forest will stand as a monument to the wonderful work that is being done to rehabilitate this region.

MUCH PUBLICITY

Complete committee reports of the Wolverine Conservation association of Escanaba, demonstrate the way in which a small and humble fish gave this city, and incidentally the Upper Peninsula of Michigan, a world of publicity recently.

The compiled figures show that 16,705 pounds of smelt, dipped in their night spring runs from Delta county streams, were shipped to 360 consignees in many states. The retrievers of the fish, mostly members of the association, had a million dollars worth of fun while the runs were on, and they made no charge whatever for the shipments. The consignees paid the express charges, enjoyed a new and palate-tickling delight, and resolved to thank the donors later at the point of origin. Incidentally the district received a hugh amount of desirable publicity.

Of the above total—nearly eight an done-half tons of smelt—associatio nmembers caught 14,707 pounds, and of course they reserved ample amounts for themsedves and their friends. Donations of fish and receipts from the first annual series of smelt jamboree frolics made up a part of the deficit, so that the actual expense to the Wolverine club in staging an event which attracted $28.94.
nation-wide attention was only

Dozens of papers in other states gave front-page prominence to the Escanaba smelt runs and to the local feasts which followed. No one went hungry for smelt at home, as there was enough for everybody. The outcome proved the old maxim that it is more to give than to receive, and the givers are happy in the thought that they have done others a good turn as well as themselves.

MINE STRIKE ORDERED

A strike of the organized miners on the Gogebic range has been called for May 13 an dthe members of the unions in Iron county are to be polled to decide whether they, also, will cease work. In Gogebic the men want a seven hour day, a 50 percent increase in wages, improved working conditions and abolition of contracts. If the Iron county men vote to cease work they will, spokesmen say, make similar demands. In any event the strikers will be asking more than they expect to get and will be willing to compromise, if the operators show disposition to yield any considerable part of their demands.

The organizers for the union have been at work in the Lake uperior district for over a year, their activities paralleling those of the operators to encourage the formation of company union groups to act as representatives of the workers in efforts to adjust differences. There is conflict of opinion as to the number of workers who have been enlisted in the unions, but it seems to be the consensus that the members in good standing on all the ranges are far short of a majority. If this is true they could walk out without, of necessity, causing a cessation of mining operations, unless recruitment of members was greatly speeded up after the break had come or unless the men who desired to continue at work were intimidated.

Unless the sthike could be made general there would be little prospect of success with it. Conditions take them as a whole, are not favorable, even if it were general, to an issue that would give the men what they sought. Supplies of ore available in the lower lake ports cover the needs of the furnaces for many weeks. There are heavy additional reserves at the mines. If they were shipped the period during which the industry could get along without current mining would be extended additional weeks. They could be shipped unless the miners were able to bring about sympathetic strikes of far-reaching extent.

That the strike can be made general appears doubtful. In some areas of the region organization is comparatively backward and it is doubtful that an order to strike issued in them would cause a cessation of mining. Lacking worker solidarity, the result would be a speeding up of production in areas where mining was being carried on to meet whatever increased demand on their properties might result from tht strike.

The merits of matters in controversy have not been sufficiently discussed to give the public much basis for judgment. Organization among the workers has been to large extent an underground movement, and the operators have, for the most part, ignored it. There has been no comprehensive debate of the issue whether, the conditions of the industry being what they are, the wages and working conditions in the mines are all that can reasonably be asked.

A basic condition bearing on the controversy is the sickly condition of the steel, and therefore the mining, industry for three or four years past. None of the major operators in steel, whose activities account for the employment of most of the Lake uperior miners, have been making money. They have, instead, been turning in deficits that have put considerable holes in their surpluses. They have not found much of encouragement in the long range view. They cannot, the railroads being in decline and the prospects of the kind of building that means demand for heavy steel being so indifferent, see much promise of earnings in the early future. They contend that they have, considering the circumstances confronting them, operated the mines with all the liberality of working conditions and pay that could be expected. They have, they assert, gone further in this direction than the status of the steel industry has justified.

The leaders of the union and many of the members of the union do not see eye to eye with them on these points. Else there would be no threat of a strike. The question now in the balance is the one of how many of the mine workers incline to the view that the operators, all conditions considered, have shown good will and have done all that could fairly be asked.

On the answer that will be returned to it will depend whether the strike now ordered in the Gogebic district will assume serious proportions and spread, or whether it will prove abortive.

The public interest lies on the side of continued and peaceful operation of the industry on terms acceptable to the majority of the workers and the operators. It would be most adversely affected by a long continued strike. The public will, therefore, hope that the issue can be avoided and that, if it is joined, it will be settled, one way or the other, with little loss of time.—Iron Mountain News.

CHAPTER XLV

Buchanan said, "That clinches it. You're Phyllis Faulconer. That note was written by Bob Caise. Sergenat Mahoney bet me 10 bucks that when we got Phyllis Faulconer I'd find that Bob Caise had tipped her off about the car. That's why he sent me to wait for it. Come on, you're going to headquarters and get booked."

"But you don't understand," she said. "That not wasn't left for me. That was . . ."

"Oh baloney!" he said. "I've heard enough of your alibis. You come with me. You can tell your troubles to Sergeant Mahoney."

"Thank heavens!" she said. "I can at least talk with someone who's got intelligence."

"Go on, smarty, make all your wise cracks," he said, opening the door of the automobile and pulling her by the handcuffed wrists. "You may think I'm dumb but I had sense enough to trap you and trap you right."

She recognized the futility of further argument and braced herself to be led down the stairs. Once more she saw the pitying glance of the uniformed atendant of the garage and now she understood its complete significance. He had known that a police detective was waiting to arrest whoever showed up to take out that Faulconer sedan, and he had known she was walking into a trap when she climbed the stairs.

She felt her cheeks burn with humiliation as she was led, handcuffed, in charge of the officer, across the lighted lower floor.

"Wel," Buchanan said triumphantly, "I got her."

"Do you need those handcuffs?" the garage man asked.

Buchana flashed him a belligerent glance.

"I'll say I do. She's wanted for murder."

The garage atendant stuck by his guns.

"You're about a hundred pounds heavier than she is," he remarked. "If she hasn't got a gun you should be able to handle her without handcuffs."

"You don't need to tell me how to do my job," Buchanan remarked. "All I want you to do is to show me where the telephone is and then keep quiet."

The attendant jerked his head toward the office. Buchanan took Millicent into the office, hooked his foot around the leg of a chair, jerked it a few inches toward Millicent and said, "Sit down there and rest yourself. Don't try to make a break."

He picked up the telephone, said, "Police headquarters," and then, after a moment said, "Homicide Department . . . Is Sergeant Mahoney there? Well, let me talk with Ramsey . . . Hello, Ramsey, this is Buchanan. I got the Faulconer jane. . . Ye, she's sitting right here at the Savoy garage. Where's Mahoney?"

The receiver made a long series of squawking noises, and Buchanan said, "Well, see if you can get Mahoney and tell Johansen to come around here. It's just a couple of blocks . . . Yes, sure, he's off duty, but he mixed into it and he might as well see it through. Tell him it's big stuff and he may get his name in a newspaper. Only shoot him along."

Buchanan hung up the telephone.

"And now," Millicent asked, "do we start for headquarters?"

"Not yet, sister."

He tilted back in the chair, put his feet up on the desk, pulled a black cigar from his pocket, clipped off the end, inspected it, wrapped his like around it, scratched a match on the sole of his shoe and concentrated his attention upon lighting the cigar. When he had it burning to sit him he puffed out clouds of smoke, his manner that of one who is very well pleased with himself.

"Well," Millicent demanded impatiently, "what are we waiting for? I want to talk with someone who has some authority."

"Sister," he told her, "I've got all the authority you need to bother about."

"I mean," she said, "someone who has sense as well as authority."

"I had sense enough to outsmart you," he told her.

She ignored the comment.

After a few moments she demanded again, "Well, what are we

"That," he said, "is one of the things you might like to know, but you're pretty smart and you'll know what I want to tell you and nothing else.

"I demand," she said, "to be taken to headquarters. I happen to know that you've got to take me before a magistrate when you arrest me."

"So," he said, "you've got a criminal record, have you?"

"No, I haven't a criminal record. I've got work to do and I demand an opportunity to vindicate myself."

"Don't worry. You're going to get that, I promise. If you're on the up and up we'll know it in a very few minutes."

"How?"

"We've got someone coming who can identify the real Phyllis Faulconer. I won't take your word one way or another. I'm betting you're Phyllis Faulconer, but just the same I'm going to give you all the breaks."

"Oh," she said, "if you'd only do that! If you'd only have someone from the apartment house who knows the real Phyllis Faulconer it would save you the humiliation of making a false arrest and save me a lot of time."

"Okay, sister," he agreed good-naturedly, puffing smoke at the ceiling. "I've got a chap by the name of Johansen coming around here. He knows the real Phyllis Faulconer and I know him. He's a square-shooter, but he's hard-boiled and you can't slip anything over on him. Here he comes now."

Millicent heard the pound of heavy steps. She already anticipated the vindication that was to be hers. She turned a smiling face, and then the smile froze on her lips and panic filled her eyes.

"Hello, Johansen," said Buchanan.

The man who pushed his way through the glass paneled doorway nodded a greeting and then shifted his eyes to Millicent.

He was the officer who had knocked on the door of the apartment and complained to Millicent about the excessive noise—the man who had blown the police whistle when she fled from the apartment!

LYRICS OF LIFE

By Douglas Malloch

TRY TO LIVE IT

To take religion into church
Is not so difficult to do,
Awhile the word of God to search—
But then to take it home with you
And try to live it, word and deed,
Then that is more than books to read
Or sermons hear—a harder thing
Than kneel and pray or rise and sing.

To more than merely take it home,
The Sunday sermon you have heard,
To keep it with you while you roam
And try to live it, word by word—
That is religion, that is more
Than leaving at the office door,
The way that one puts off his hat,
His coat, his rubbers, and all that.

So take it with you all the way,
The righteousness, the word of grace.
An office is a place to pray
As well as any other place.
To try to live it is the test
Of all religions, mine, the rest,
Not only something for the pew
On Sunday, but the whole week through.

Male Toes Peep In New Footgear

BY HAL BOYLE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

St. Louis, May 4 (AP) The masculine toe, once as inviolate as the feminine ankle, will be prominently displayed in men's summer footwear this season.

Or so hope the more adventuresome shoe manufacturers here, who, taking a tip from the beaches, are showing novelty lines of "ventilated" footgear long taboo to the conservative-minded male.

For the daring of the species, there is a semi-sandal in which air-conditioning and leather are fused in about equal parts. The shoe has wide performations from the instep to the base of the toe, enabling a good view of that hitherto unsocial member. It is carried in the usual shades.

The performated shoe—definitely "in" for the hot summer months—comes in all types and patterns from the ordinary walking oxford to the radical two-tin golf moccasins. The ventilations range from the cuneiform "wedge" to the "buckshot spread."

Light tan and brown are the dominating colors.

Ancient sailors believed that the halcyon, a bird of the kingfisher family, nested on the waves about the time of the winter solstice and that the sea remained calm and peaceful during this period; hence the term "halcyon days" for times of peace and tranquility.

Four thousand new patents were issued by the Czechoslovakian patent office duirng 1933, an increase of 100 over the preceding year. This patent office has issued 46,700 patents since its establishment.

Band of Michigan Lumberjacks Play in Tennessee Folk Festival

BY EDWIN HOLMAN

Chattanooga, Tenn. (AP)—Here in the heart of mountains peopled by pioneer stock, the National Folk festival will revive the ways of life in vogue when America was young.

They are ways foreign to persons who dwell on the beaten paths. Yet they have been handed down through generations and preserved in the remoteness of mountain cabins, cotton plantations, Michigan lumber camps, sailing schooners and chuck wagons of the cow country.

Playwright Is President

Sarah Gertrude Knott, native Kentuckian and executive director of the Dramatic League of St. Louis, is national director of the festival. Paul Green, the North Carolina playwright, was chosen president. To their aid were called authoriites on folk life throughout the nation. The first annual festival was held last year in St. Louis.

Now Chattanooga is preparing for the four-day spectacle. Festivities will open May 13 with an old-fashioned square dance in a wide street roped off from traffic. Bascom Lamar Lunsford of Asheville, N. C., authority on the square dance and its history, will call the figures.

Varied Folk Singing

Then will follow a series of old-fashioned community sings, folk singing that runs the scale of mountain ballads, plantation songs, sea chanteys and ballads from lumber camps and cattle trails; folk dances of the sort they dance in country schoolhouses, on the river levees, in Indian villages; and displays of handicraft.

No professional performers are in the festival cast, which includes:

Romaine Lowdermilk, cowboy ballad singer; ranch hands from Arizona; plantation negro octet from Mississippi; "Pennsylvania Dutch" group from the vicinity of Allentown; singing miners from Pottsville, Pa.; old-time sailors' group headed by Leo B. Regan of New London, Conn.; Cherokee and Kiowa Indian bands from North Carolina and Oklahoma reservations respectively.

Cat Bite As Perilous As Dog or Rat Bites

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

We all know what to do when a mad dog bites a person. But we should realize also that a mad cat or a mad rat can do as much harm as the dog.

For some time it has been known that the bite of the rat, and occasionally of the dog, may infect the human being with certain germs and that these germs, once established in the body, produce a disease known as rat bite fever.

The disease was particularly frequent during the World War among soldiers in the trenches, and quite recently a considerable number of cases were reported from London among workers in sewers who became contaminated with the excretions of rats or who occasionally suffered the bites of rats.

Very rarely does this disease come to the human being from the bite of a cat. But two doctors recently reported a case in which the infection was transmitted in this manner.

A girl, 14 years old, noticed a cat which was caught in a trap in a garage. The trap had been set for rats.

The stray cat bit the girl on the back of her bare right leg just above the ankle. The wound was washed immediately, painted with iodine and bandaged. But 10 days later the leg began to swell, then lumps appeared, indicating that the glands were infected.

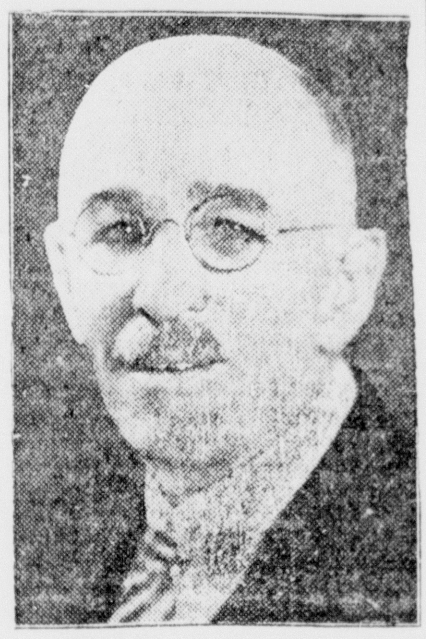
The girl also developed some destruction of her red blood cells with anemia and a considerable increase in her white blood cells, due to the infection. She had periodic attacks of fever and broke out with a rash typical of this condition.

After treatment with the arsenical remedies used to overcome rat bite fever, she gradually recovered.

Attempts were made to find the germ that caused rat bite fever in her blood, but these were unsuccessful.

Dr. Barker To Address Rotes Meet



Dr. Charles E. Barker

Dr. Charles E. Barker, famed lecturer, will be one of the main speakers at the annual convention of Rotary clubs of the Wisconsin-Upper Michigan district, which will be held in Escanaba May 13 and 14.

Dr. Barker has been active in boys' work and he has delivered hundreds of addresses on this subject throughout the United States.

He holds university degrees as a doctor of hygiene and physical culture. During the four years that the late Chief Justice William H. Taft was in the White House, Dr. Barker was his physical instructor.

For the six years following the close of the Taft administration, Dr. Barker devoted his winters to lecturing to the general public on health under the auspices of the International Committee of the Young Men's Christian association and in the summer months he was on the Redpath Chautauqua platform. In recent years, he has been active in appearing for speaking engagements before Rotary clubs.

Hodgkins Farm Is Purchased By Sundquist

The Hodgkins Brothers' 320-acre farm at Pine Ridge, one of the finest in Delta county, has been purchased by Clarence Sundquist, well known Bark River dairyman. Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Hodgkins and the latter's sister, Mrs. Adelaide Hodkgins, are moving from the farm this week-end to make their home in Escanaba.

The Hodgkins Brothers' farm enterprise was an unique family affair. The two brothers married two sisters, William to Adelaide Hayter, and Harvey to Emma Hayter. William Hodgkins died three years ago.

The two brothers and two sisters went on the farm in 1889, and the family group worked hard and harmoniously to make the dairy farm one of the most outstanding in the community. Two hundred acres of the farm have been cleared. The Hodgkins herd of about thirty fine grade Holsteins always stood high in the production records of the cow testing associations. The herd now will be merged with the Sundquist herd of Holsteins.

BUCK AND DOE RATIOS CLOSE

Game Specialist Reports on Deer Trapping in Cusino

The sex ratio of deer in the Cusino Game Refuge, near Munising, is about one buck to 1.2 does, according to indications revealed in a survey made during the live-trapping operations this winter, Max Wakeman, game specialist of the conservation department, reports.

Twenty-three bucks and 28 does were live-trapped and tagged. There were 60 recatches of these animals.

The work was conducted as a project of the Cusino Refuge CCC camp. A box trap, 12 feet long, four feet high and four feet wide, was used.

The deer were tagged so that it might be possible later to determine their range from the winter yards. Mr. Wakeman reported that the deer did not have any difficulty in obtaining food this winter, and all the animals appear to be in good condition.

MANY ANGLERS ARE ARRESTED

Failure to Get 50-Cent License Brings Troubles

Fifty cents invested in the purchase of a resident fishing license would have spared trouble and expense for a number of Michigan fishermen during March.

The monthly report of the Field Administration Division, Department of Conservation, lists 169 arrests for that month and of the 169 arrests, 62 were on charges of fishing without a license, the most frequent of all infractions of the fish and game laws.

In nearly all instances where fines and costs were assessed the violators, the amount involved was many times in excess of the cost of a resident fishing license.

Illegal spearing and illegal netting on the lakes and streams came in for their share of attention by conservation officers during the month. Twenty-six individuals were taken into custody on illegal spearing counts and 19 for illegal netting. Rainbow trout and black bass were among the species of fish taken by wielders of the spear.

Remainder of the fishing violation arrests are divided among a dozen different counts.

Of the total of 169 arrests made during the month, 135 were for illegal fishing, 21 were for violation of the game laws and 12 for trapping law infractions. Fines totalling $886 and costs amounting to $766 were assessed in justice court. The aggregate of jail sentences imposed was 890 days. Fines were suspended in 36 cases nine violators were placed on probation, two cases were lost in justice court, one charge was dismissed and one sentence suspended.

Protection For Upper Peninsula Arbutus Urged

BY JOHN O'BRIEN

Munising, May 1—This is the season of the trailing arbutus. It is distressing to the lovers of this delicate and sensitive flower to note how the average gleaner tears up their roots as though they were noxious weeds. This beautiful and fragrant flower is not ours to destroy but to pass on from one generation to the other. We should protect them by gathering them, not by the roots whereby they are unable to reproduce, but by cutting them close at the base with shears.

Alger county in the last few years, because of its accessibility, has suffered a serious setback in the plentitude of its rare and beautiful trailing arbutus. The so-called "lovers of nature" swarm to the woods in the early spring not to live and let live but rather to see how many rare tropheys of the woods they can bring back. The tender arbutus are given a severe mauling, and consequently being pulled up by the roots are exterminated in that locality. Hillsides that were once abloom with these beautiful white fragrant flowers now look as if a cyclone had struck them, tearing them up by the roots and scattering them to the four winds.

So will go the arbutus like the other rare flowers and animals the priceless heritage of the Upper Peninsula, if we do not preserve and protect them.

early French explorers knew what they were doing when they named their find "King's Island," for that is the meaning of the term. Its lofty pine-covered cliffs and deep fjords have been likened to the rock-bound coasts of Norway and of southern Chile. One can hardly understand the enthusiasm of the national park proponents until he gets his eyes and his feet on the ground. Here is indeed a royal island, differing radically from all others in this hemisphere.

Why should Ben East, for example, level-headed conservation editor of the Grand Rapids Press, display such strong, almost impassioned emotion when advocating the cause of Isle Royale? The best answer is that he has been there time and again, and that every visit has deepened his conviction that the natural beauties of Isle Royale must be saved for this and coming generations. Only those who have never seen the island could presume to criticize East and Cammerer, Vanderberg and Couzens and other warm supporters of the federal park idea.

Diversity of scenic appeal is one of the Upper Peninsula's strongest cards in the strenuous competition for tourist patronage. Diversity reaches the nth degree on Isle Royale. Not more than half a dozen men have ever struggled over its rough and rugged terrain from end to end, and it took them weeks to recuperate from the hardships of the trip. The fact is that the interior of Isle Royale is one of the least known sections of the continent. And this in spite of the fact that it is less than two hours distant from Escanaba by plane, and can be made from the Keweenaw Peninsula in 30 minutes.

Virtually an Unknown Country

What little we know about Isle Royale is ample warrant for its preservation. We do know that the island shores are wild and stormtorn almost beyond belief; that there are half a dozen or so fascinating harbors where one can land safely; that hundreds of prehistoric miners have left question marks not yet solved; and that if one place can be found on earth where air and waters and 100 per cent pure, it is there.

The story of Isle Royale's moose population is a strange and moving one. What brought them to this once isolated spot far out in the mighty Lake Superior? Was it lack of food on the mainland, or animal or human predators? Have they exhausted the natural food supplies that formerly were abundant, or have they been the victims of some unknown parasite? They form the nation's largest moose herd. Are they about to become the progenitors of herds as large as, or larger than, their present numbers on the Michigan Upper Peninsula mainland?

These are interesting questions, and there are many others. Does native copper remain there in commercial quantities, or have the unknown delvers of long ago exhausted the deposits? Why have certain island beaches such as abundance of agates and thompsonites? How many centuries must have elapsed to produce the varities of strange plant sub-species there?

One rather perplexing question has been solved by the linguists, aided by meteorology. Why have the Indians of all time looked upon Isle Royale as a magic floating island? The solution is found in the correct translation of the Indian tongues. The aborigines were thought to have believed that Isle Royale was without anchorage, and that it was driven from shore to shore of Lake Superior by the winds. What they meant to say and did say was that they had often seen it floating in the sky, and they shunned it for that reason.

A Somersaulting Island

The accusation of magic is solved, of course, when the mirages of Gitche Gumee, the Big-Sea-Water of Hiawatha, are understod. In the warm days of summer dwellers on Isle Royale often see the towers and pinnacles of the island reproduced above them against the background of bright blue sky, riding upside down in the clear ether. No wonder the superstitious Indians gave the island a wide berth when cruising Lake Superior in their birch-bark canoes. When a perfectly good island rises from its solid base and goes somersaulting into the blue dome of heaven, sensible folks go right away from there, and they keep as far away as possible. The logic of the Indian was sound and unanswerable.

The potent and only magic of Isle Royale is found in its disparate terrain and in the unique variety of charm which intrigues the thought of all who have been fortunate enough to see it. Those who wonder what all the hub-bub is about over this national park proposal are advised to pay the island a visit in the near future. They are sure to be henceforth as rabid fans for Isle Royale as Ben East and Senator Vandenberg ever were.

The time is here for Michigan to acquire its first national park—one that will be the equal or the peer of any other in the United States. The first requisite to this end is an awakened and sustained public interest. If we want the park bad enough we will surely get it, and a larger proportion of our people must be aroused and made acquainted with the emergency facing Michigan today. How many readers realize that thousands of Americans make it a point to visit one or more national parks each year, and that they go through the list as religiously as they go to church? If only five per cent of these park devotees should come to Michigan yearly, bent on seeing the island in its new status, the total would constitute a respectable increase in the numbers of our tourist visitors.

These States Should Help

One aspect of the fight for Isle Royale that should not be forgotten is the stake which Minnesota and Wisconsin have in the outcome. The erection of a new national park is always accompanied by a wealth of federal and other nation-wide publicity. The faithful park followers flock to see it and the vacationing public joins the procession. It would be hard to over-estimate the benefits which will accrue to the above states, in addition to Michigan, when the gem known as Isle Royale is strung on the national park chain.

It is conservative to say that the funds left in Wisconsin and Minnesota by travelers to and from Isle Royale from the west and the southwest will total hundreds of thousands of dollars annually. Perhaps many tourists will sojourn on the island without visiting any other part of Michigan whatever. But thousands more will travel the length of both Michigan peninsulas to enjoy a park area which their government has prepared for them, and they will drop dollars all along the way.

The three states should make common cause in one united action for a successful outcome. Let them pull together, and every obstacle now looming large can be surmounted and overcome.

We must have the Isle Royale national park

AMICABLE AGREEMENT IS REACHED

The unfortunate situation, arising over the killing of an English setter, which was playing in Ludington park, has been cleared up to the satisfaction of George M. Mashek, owner of the dog, and the state conservation department.

The incident stirred up considerable feeling during the week it occurred. The conservation department has issued a statement, regretting the incident, and explaining that while although the conservation officer was pursuing his duty, the circumstances would have justified the exercising of better judgment.

The conservation department has made it known that in the future the shooting of dogs under such circumstances will not be repeated. The amicable settlement of the delicate situation is in the best interests of conservation.

WILL IMPROVE FISH STREAMS

Extensive Improvement Planned in Hiawatha Forest

Munising, Mich., May 4.—The advent of proper weather conditions in the Kentucky Work Sector of the Hiawatha National Forest has made possible initial steps in a carefully prepared plan for the improvement of several designated streams in that vicinity.

The waterways chosen for this purpose consist of the Little Indian River, Deer Creek, and the South branch of the Stutts Creek.

In general, stream improvement has two major aspects. One type takes into consideration those factors which are related to the destructive effects of floods and the excessive erosion of the soil. The other type is designated to provide a more suitable habitat for our common game fish. In the Upper Michigan areas the latter activity is more important and is the one generally incorporated in the Forest Service work program.

Streams Are Cold

Under natural conditions the cool streams of Northern Michigan furnish an ideal medium for the breeding and thrifty growth of rainbow and common brook trout. In many cases, however, the natural cover adjacent to the streams has been removed through logging operations and this, with the flooding caused by beaver dams, has made many of the creeks and water courses unfit for trout habitation.

The first step in stream development, and the one now underway, is to start at the headwaters and remove all the beaver dams. On the Little Indian River, where the work is now in progress, over a distance of three miles, eleven of these obstructions have been taken out.

Elimination of the dams is carefully done. Due to their destructive effect on fish and other forms of aquatic life the use of explosives is avoided and the removal of the dams accomplished entirely by hand labor. These dams have been previously abandoned by the beaver.

WILL BUILD SHELTERS

This operation restores the natural wash of the current in the stream bed, gives longer stretches of sand or gravel bottom, and provides a lower water temperature. Following this, various compensating works are established to maintain the regulation of the current. Shelters must be built into the stream bed and at certain points excessive erosion of the banks must be controlled.

Experience in other regions has shown that it is possible to maintain ideal conditions for the breeding and growing of trout as a permanent project and the forest service is giving this work a prominent place in its present extensive Forest program. This activity is to be intensively pursued and will be coordinated closely with all fish and game projects and with the development of recreational facilities.

DOG TROUBLE NOW SETTLED

Conservation Dep't and Mashek Reach Accord In Case

Court action in the case of Alfred Valentine, conservation officer, who shot an English setter dog owned by George M. Mashek in Ludington park several days ago, will be dropped, it was indicated yesterday.

Robert Furlong, district supervisor, sent the following letter yesterday to Mr. Mashek:

"Referring to the recent shooting of your English setter by Conservation Officer Alfred Valentine in that part of the duck refuge within the Escanaba city park, I wish to make the following explanation:

"I regret very much that faulty judgment on the part of one of our officers has deprived you of a dog, which you prized so highly. Officer Valentine was acting in the line of duty, but on his own initiative at the time. It is not a policy of this department to shoot dogs under such circumstances.

"While the law does not permit dog owners to allow their dogs to molest game birds or animals during their respetcive closed seasons, the local situation, which includes a refuge which ducks frequent, and a city park, where dogs may be naturally expected to play, requires that a great deal of good judgment be exercised in the enforcement of this law. It is my intention, speaking their respective closed seasons, that the law be applied in this manner so that the ducks will be protected and the right of the dog owners recognized."

BIG FORESTRY MEET PLANNED

Central States Congress Will Be Held at Houghton Lake

Representatives of 10 middle-western states will be the official guests of Michigan June 19, 20 and 21 when the Central States Forestry Congress convenes at Houghton Lake for its sixth annual meeting, it is announced by the Forestry Division, Department of Conservation.

The Congress is composed of the States of Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Gest Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Missouri, Iowa and Michigan. Forestry representatives from universities, colleges, the National Forest Service and the states mentioned are expected to be in attendance.

Houghton Lake was selected as the convention site because of its location in one of the best-known forest areas of Michigan. The program will emphasize field trips into the Houghton Lake and Hiflgins Lake State Forests, visits to Higgins Lake State Forest nursery, Hartwick Pines state park, Grayling State Fish hatchery and the State Forest Fire Experiment station near Roscommon. Field discussions will be held on the various phases of roestry management.

One of the objectives of the Central States Forestry Congress, according to George S. McIntire, assistant state forester and secretary-treasurer of the congress, is to serve as a clearing house for consideration of forestry problems of common interest.

This includes the protection of forests from fire and grazing, reforestation of abandoned and submarginal agricultural land, management of existing forests and marketing and utilization of their productions; development of fish and game resources, fur-ebaring animals and other wildlife; use of wild lands for recreational purposes; the influence of forests in the preveniton of erosion and the regulation of stream flow and the advancement of forestry research.

The congress also aids the exchange of helpful ideas, experiences and mothods between individuals and institutions, the promotion of progressive and consistent action in the formulation and execution of sound forest policies and the stimulation of public interest and support in furthering the wise use of forest resources, McIntire stated.

New Orders Gain At Lumber Mills

Washington, D. C., May 4—New business at the lumber mills has shown progressive increase for three consecutive weeks with the unrevised total volume booked during the week ended April 27, 1935, the heaviest of any week since November, 1933. Shipments were in excess of those of any week since July, 1933, production was heaviest since September, 1934. Southern and Western lumber regions shared in the gains. Orders were 32 percent above those of the corresponding week of 1934; shipments were 26 percent in excess of those reported for the 1934 week and production was one percent above similar 1934 output. These comparisons are based upon telegraphic reports to the National Lumber Manufacturers association from regional associations covering the operations of 1029 leading hardwood and softwood mills which produced 190,470,000 feet during the week ended April 27, 1935; shipped 225,268,000 feet and booked orders totalling 236,104,000 feet. Revised figures for the preceding week were mills, 1,071; production, 190,480,000 feet; shipments, 211,935,000 feet; orders, 232,956,000 feet.

All regions but Northern Hemlock, Northeastern Hardwoods and North Central Hardwoods reported orders above production during the week ended April 27. Total softwood orders were 25 percent above output; hardwood orders, 6 percent above hardwood production. Total shipments were 18 percent above production. All regions but Northern Hemlock and Northern Hardwoods reported orders above those of corresponding week of 1934. Total softwood orders were 33 percent above those of last year's week; hardwood orders were 23 percent above in similar somparison.

Van Wagoner Favors Shoreline Road and Elimination of Dust

St. Joseph, May 4 (AP)—State Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagoner pledged the support of his department to the development of Michigan's tourist and resort industry tonight, and disclosed a three-fold program.

In an address before 300 municipal officers and resort leaders Van Wagoner promised that new landscaping projects, development of permanent dustless surfaces on gravel roads, and a continuation of shoreline highway work would be major phases of the new road program when Michigan receives its share of President Roosevelt's $4,880,000,000 work and relief money. The state expects to spend $23,000,000 on road construction, he said.

Van Wagoner told his audience that he considered development of a continuous shoreline route fringing the great lakes and the construction of connecting links on the inland tourist arteries the most important phase of his program. He said much work of this type has been done already "and we intend to do more."

Of dustless gravel roads he said "the old slogan of 'Get Michigan Out of the Mud'" has been changed to "Get Michigan Out of the Dust." The commissioner said a new kind of dustless surface for highways, called "the gravel mix," can be constructed for approximately one-fifth the cost of concrete, with an additional saving of $500 a mile annually in upkeep.

Van Wagoner said the department also is eager to continue the development of diagonal routes in the state, mentioning the Detroit-Frankfort route as an example. These, he said, will help Michigan citizens to reach their resort homes, eliminate many cities from the route to cut down driving time, and be more economical because they are more direct.

The commissioner's remarks were made at a program which followed the dedication this afternoon of a new highway tourist lodge and information station on US-12 near New Buffalo.

CLEARY COMMENTS

To the Editor of the Escanaba Daily Press:

The article in your paper on Saturday morning, May 4, with the heading, "Escanaba Councilmen Condemn Luecke and Logan" was read with much interest.

The gentleman who led the attack of criticism against Mr. Luecke and Mr. Logan claimed that some of the men named on committees are not capable. If he feels that some of the supervisors are not capable of holding office, it might be well for him to inform the public as to their identity. He also states that in his experience on the county board, this was the first time he had heard politics mentioned.

The writer believes that all elected supervisors have the right to represent the wishes of their constituents and in my opinion, they try to satisfy the wishes of the majority at all times.

While the county board was composed of a majority of Republican members, there was apparently no public protest to their actions. Criticism at that time, would be distasteful and of course was carefully guarded against appearing in the Press.

The gentleman would not like to have made public, the careful plans of the supervisors to make certain that the board of county road commissioners always remained in the Republican control, nor does he apparently remember that the county board, during the time he was a member, mentioned politics to the extent of adopting a resolution supporting the reelection of a Republican, Grover Cleveland Dillman, as highway commissioner of Michigan, a political move entirely beyond the province of county politics.

It is amusing to note how the workings of the Republican politics are closely kept under cover and camouflaged to suit their own purpose, but whenever any matter which slightly smacks of Democratic politics appears, it is eagerly snapped up and given all the publicity possible. I am mindful of the action of the United States Chamber of Commerce, some two years ago, who sent representatives to Washington urgently imploring the Democratic administration and our president to come to the aid of business. Because of the Democratic action which was taken and which action resulted in improved conditions for the common people, it takes from the industrial leaders, some of their previous power and privileges, and today, heartened by reviving business, the same United States Chamber of Commerce is trying in every way possible, to wreck the present administration program. Big business is fearful of having lost to it, forever, the old time method of exploiting labor for its own excessive profit, and benefits and therefore feel the need of crushing out the present humane and righteous program of our beloved President, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

And so it goes—but why comment further on matters which are so evident to one who will use ordinary judgment.

I might add, regarding comment on the lack of a telephone by Chairman S. N. Harrod, that it is Mr. Herrod's intention to install a telephone in the very near future. However, there are other supervisors without telephone facilities, and in my opinion, the lack of a telephone should not operate to prohibit any citizen from aspiring to political office.

I might also state that in my opinion the appointments by the chairman of the county board of supervisors reflects good judgment and the board, as constituted, will render able and efficient service to all the residents of Delta county.

One look at the appointments made by Chairman Harrod will show that Escanaba is well represented on the various committees, and they have no cause for worry that Escanaba will lose "financially."

Regarding the larger mileage costs to the county, that will be run up by the attendance of the committee members attending the monthly meetings of the finance and auditing committees, a careful check will show that the additional cost will be $20.00 monthly, and I do not think that the various townships should be denied representation on these important committees on account of the increased mileage cost.

In closing I might add, isn't it just too bad that some people "can't take it."

Yours very truly,
GERALD J. CLEARY, Chr.,
Delta County Democratic Committee.

Florence French, William Huffman Wed on Saturday

The charm of simplicity and beauty of detail marked the wedding Saturday afternoon of Florence Margaret French, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. French, 602 Lake Shore Drive, to William Henry Huffman, of Madison, Wis., son of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Huffman, of Wilmette, Ill.

The ceremony, which took place at 4 o'clock, Rev. Carl E. Berger, of the First Presbyterian church, reading the marriage service, was performed in the living room of the French residence, before the fireplace, which, banked with palms and pink and white snapdragons, softly lighted by slender ivory tapers in candelabra, formed a lovely setting.

Two solos, "A Bridal Song," Herbert Ward, and "All for You," Bertrand Brown, were sung by Susan Semer, concert soloist, just before the ceremony, Mrs. F. M. Fernstrom playing her accompaniments.

The traditional Bridal Chorus from "Lohengrin" was played by Mrs. Fernstrom, as the processional, and Mendelssohn's Wedding March at the close of the ceremony.

The bride, preceded by her sister, Miss Maxine French, who was her only attendant, proceeded down the stairway with her father who gave her in marriage, while the bridegroom and his attendant, Attorney Robert Deo, entered from a side room, and with the pastor, awaited her.

The bride wore a model of flesh colored net over taffeta, the bodice of trim tailored lines and the skirt flared, and a finger-tip length veil of flesh net. She carried a bridal bouquet of Rasputin roses and lilies of the valley. Her maid of honor wore rosetta green net over taffeta with wide revered collar of coral, and a halo of green net and she carried snapdragons of deep coral shading to lighter tints.

Mrs. French wore an attractive black chiffon with peach organdie trim and a shoulder corsage of Talisman roses and Mrs. Huffman, a lovely gown of dusky pink silk sheer and a shoulder corsage of orchids.

A reception for guests at the wedding, limited to members of the immediate families and small group of intimate friends, followed the ceremony.

The young people left later on a motor trip through the east. The bride's going-away costume was a wool tailleur of cocoa brown with which she wore brown accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Huffman will make their home in Madison, Wis., where Mr. Huffman is located in the division engineer's office of the Chicago & North Western railway.

WILL ROGERES IN "LIFE BEGINS AT 40"

If you have been saving up laughs, prepare to shed them now, for Will Rogers' latest comedy, "Life Begins At 40" opening today at the Delft Theatre, contains a bundle of hilarious situations that wil lact as magnets to the laughter chained within us all.

This breezy comedy, suggested by the Walter B. Pitkin book hit, is described as a hilarious fun fest that works into a pandemonium of mirth.

The inimitable Will is cast as a country editor who proves that the way to get a kick out of life is to put a double kick into it.

From other cities, reports tell of this picture delighting as the "clowning triumph" of Will Rogers' screen career. Youth and age roar in unison with the mirth-provoking happenings.

Rogers stampedes excitement into his small town, tries his hand at matchmaking, leads an army of veteran hillbilly hog-callers into battle, fights a frolicsome duel using wisecracks for every pistol bullet of his adversary.

Funny-bones are in peril, from all counts. The comedy of "Life Begins At 40," is doubled with a tender romance. As the editor, Rogers clear the reputation of a youth "railroaded" to penitentiary, and so stirs up a hornet's nest of hostility.

Sol M. Wurtzel produced this Fox Film picture, which George Marshall directed. The screen play is by Lamar Trotti, who collaborated on the script of "Judge Priest."

Witticisms pungent as any Will himself concosts, leave his lips in this picture. They deal with politics, women, rusticity, wealth, self-praise, love, youth and age.

Great Mothers

CATHERINE MUMFORD BOOTH

As a child, Catherine Mumford suffered from a spinal complaint and was for years in frail health. Too weak to romp with other children, she lay all day on her sofa and read history, geography, theology. Delicate as she was physically, there was nothing puny about her intellect or her character.

One day when she was grown, she was introduced to an intense young preacher, Rev. William Booth. After much inward conflict he had given up a business position for a religious career that was to include the founding and development of the Salvation Army. Meeting Catherine Mumford on the first day of his new life, he knew that she was the woman whom he wanted to marry. The deep love that sprang up between them lasted throughout their long years together.

Catherine Mumford was twenty-seven when they were married. She was still frail, but she steeled herself to bear poverty and the hardships of a traveling evangelist's life. Though in the course of her marriage she had eight children and was a devoted mother to them, she followed her husband's work with ever-fresh interest. Her children were still tiny when she began to speak at public meetings. Uncertain of herself at first, she soon gained confidence and effectiveness. Her warm sympathy made her beloved by slum-dwellers in the East End of London, who affectionately called her "The Mother of the Salvation Army." She had unbounded love and compassion, not only for those close to her, but for all the wretched and unfortunate with whom she came in contact.

Finally, as the Salvation Army developed, her life became a constant and unstinted giving of herself. Devoted to her home, she had scarcely any time for home life, since her husband and children as well as herself were subject to constant demands for time and service.

Never in all her life physically strong, she suffered for many years from a serious illness. She bore pain stoically and continued to work. Finally, the doctors told her she had only two years to live.

Her chief concern then was not for herself, but for the husband she had so long and so devotedly loved. Although she was in great bodily agony much of the time, she displayed high courage.

One night as she lay ill, there was a terrific storm that lasted for hours. The next morning the sun rose radiantly just as Catherine Booth closed her eyes for the last time.

In London, at her funeral, four miles of streets were crowded with the poor whom she had befriended.

This is the fifth of a series of biographies of "Great Mothers," prepared by the Golden Rule Mother's Day Committee, of which Mrs. James Roosevelt is honorary chairman. The committee, which is sponsoring the nation-wide observance of Mother's Day "the Golden Rule Way" on Sunday, May 12, suggests the following paraphrase of the Golden Rule: "Whatsoever you would that others should do for your mother if she were in need, and whatsoever your mother would do for the needy if she had opportunity, do on Mother's Day for other mothers and children, victims of present-day economic maladjustments." An illustrated booklet of similar biographical sketches, poems, and tributes to mothers may be had for 10 cents for shipping charges, from the Golden Rule Mother's Day Committee, 60 East 42nd street, New York.

A Page for BUILDERS and HOME OWNERS!

STORAGE ROOM IS IMPORTANT

Summer Ideal Season to Modernize, Save Food Costs

The supply of fruits and vegetables of all kinds which many home owners store in the Fall in anticipation of Winter needs usually becomes exhausted in the Spring.

When not consumed they often deteriorate rapidly during warm weather. Many decay to a certain extent during the Winter when stocked in storage bins, especially when the storage room is not well insulated to keep out excessive cold, heat, or dampness.

When the storage room with its numerous bins, shelves, and other receptacles is comparatively empty, the home owner has an excellent opportunity to give it a thorough Spring cleaning and so condition it that he may have proper storage for new supplies as they are canned, preserved, or stored. Decayed fruits and vegetables and all rubbish should be removed and the storage room scrubbed and ventilated to eliminate odors. Then shelves and bins may be repaired and additional ones installed if needed.

If the storage-room is in the corner of the basement or adjoins a basement wall, it is possible that masonry needs repairing and dampproofing. A new floor of wood or other suitable material laid over the basement floor with an air space in between the two will keep the room dry. Then insulating the walls and installing a ceiling will assist in maintaining a uniform cool temperature throughout the year.

A small window protected against the direct rays of the sun is desirable for ventilation. Artificial light, of course, should be installed for quick use at all times.

After the room has been thoroughly cleaned, ventilated, dried out, and repaired a fresh coat of paint will brighten it up and assist in making it more sanitary and easily cleaned.

Fruit, vegetable, and other types of storage rooms may be conditioned and installed through funds obtained from an approved financial institution under the easy payment modernization credit plan of the Federal Housing Administration.

Wallpaper Useful For New Paneling

A new use has been found for the many new and artistically designed wall papers now on the market.

In rooms where a paneled effect is produced by wood trim, applied to break up large expanses of plain wall space, home owners are buying wall paper in quantities sufficient to fill one or more of these paneled spaces.

A variation of this idea is used where a room is papered in a flat color and some one point, such as a closed arch or sealed doorway, requires special accentuation. Careful selection of a strong, harmonizing design has been found to be effective, especially when the proper table or other piece of furniture is placed in correct relation to it.

Wall paper can be purchased and hung with money obtained from any approved lending institution under the Modernization Credit Plan of the Federal Housing Administration.

PLEDGE $15 PER CAPITA

Rome, Ga.—Indications here are that pledges for modernization and repair will average between $15 and $20 per capita by the time the local better-housing canvass is completed. Rome's population is 21,000. To date, $210,569 in modernization and repair pledges have been obtained.

$15,300,000 In Pledges

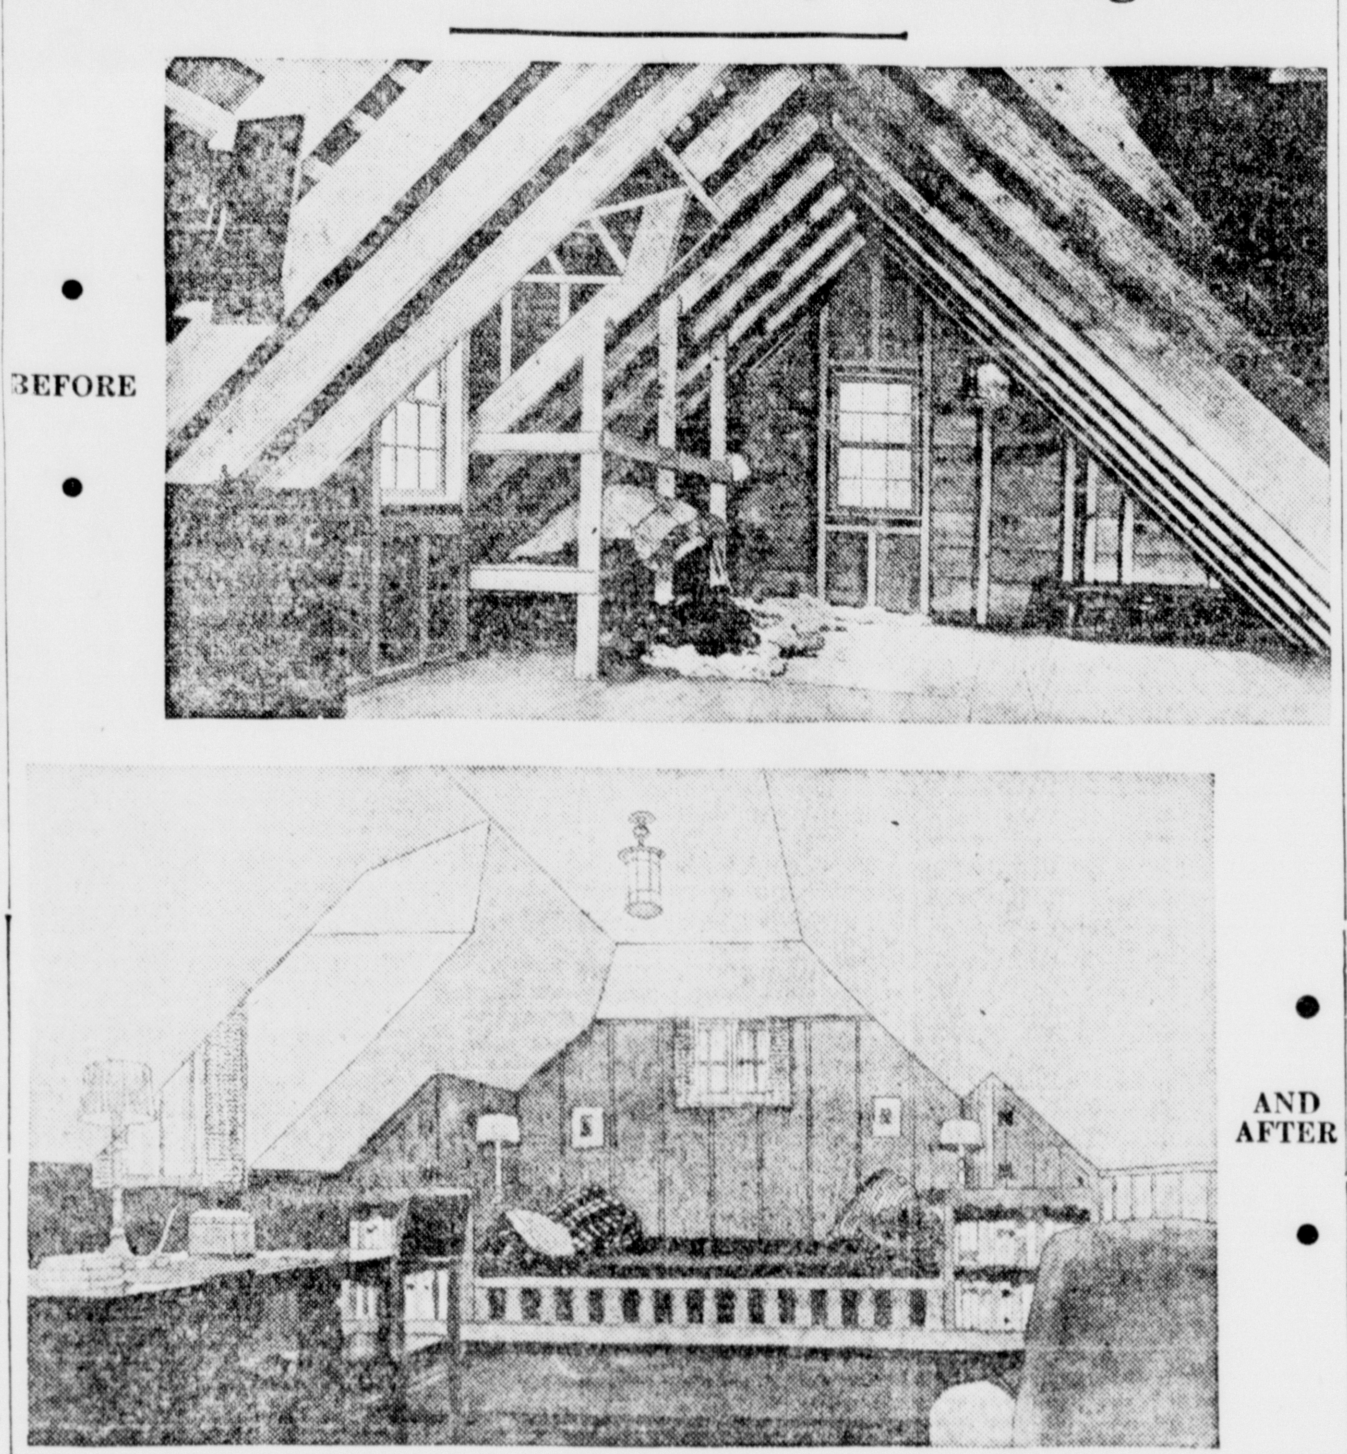
Pledges for modernization and repair projects totaling approximately $15,300,000 have been obtained to date in the Allegheny County Pa., house-to-house canvass (including the city of Pittsburgh), the Federal Housing Administration is advised. The canvass is only 82 percent complete.

In cleansing the blackened name of a thief, the South African Kaffirs shout the name into a kettle of hot, medicated water, and permit it to remain sealed for several days.

Drone bees have no fathers. They have a maternal grandfather, however. The worker bees are undeveloped females.

Approximately 10 percent of Minnesota's barley production is used for malting purposes.

Make Additional Room by Utilizing Attic



When carefully planned, many interesting modernizations are possible in attic space. The above illustrations give an example how an unused attic may be converted into an attractive bedroom. Wallboard encloses the bare rafters in an effective wall and ceiling treatment. Built-in furniture may be included to advantage in this type of remodeling. The transformation of an attic provides the home with an extra bedroom, playroom, study, or whatever the owner wishes it to be. Insulation under the roof prevents much discomfort in Summer and makes the room adequate in Winter for all living purposes. Under the provisions of the Federal Housing Administration's Modernization Credit Plan funds are easily obtainable through approved lending institutions for attic modernization.

Repairs Will Rent "Dead" Properties

Little Rock, Ark.—Through modernization the owner of a rental property here succeeded in reviving what has been for 2 years a "dead" property.

Although he offered the building for a very low rental, it had been vacant for over 24 months. The task of modernizing the 7-room, 2-story structure was begun. The owner expects to convert the building into two 4-story modern apartments at a cost of $2,000. Although the work is not yet completed, numerous people have expressed their desire to rent the apartments, when completed, for more than the owner formerly asked for the entire house.

ALL EMPLOYED

Fort Smith, Ark.—There is not one carpenter or painter remaining on relief rolls here, according to a report by the Associate Director for the State better-housing organization.

This is the first time this condition has existed in many months, according to the Director. A better-housing exhibit is being held in the heart of the business district, sponsored by building supply dealers, with a generous display of materials and fixtures. Widespread public interest is reported.

Many Ways Provided by NHA For Farmers to Modernize

People who live on the farm, or in rural communities, have a remarkable opportunity to better their condition and a great many of them have already taken advantage of the provisions of the National Housing Act.

One may obtain credit up to $2,000. The terms are easy. The money is to be used for necessary or desirable improvements. There are unlimited possibilities.

A new fence may be required. The barn may be remodeled and concrete flooring put in. Or a barn may be constructed. Wells and ponds could be financed. The house may be refinished and made more comfortable. A new heating plant, which will make the old place cozy, might be installed. The front porch may be glassed in and made into a sun parlor. The attic may be made into an attractive bedroom.

Almost anything and everything which is classed as "built in" or permanent fixtures may be obtained through the Modernization Credit Plan of the Federal Housing Administration.

The old house may be painted and new windows put in. The roofing may be fixed or completely replaced. A new chicken house or silo may be erected.

There is hardly any improvement which cannot be arranged for. All the farmer has to do is to consult his nearest banker. The great bulk of the banks and loan associations are cooperating and are anxious to help.

Modernization Rents Apartments

Finding that ten out of twelve apartments in his building would not rent, a Philadelphia landlord recently spent $273 on each of the kitchens in modernizing them and installing bright new sinks. Now all twelve apartments are full at higher rentals.

HOMEMAKERS QUESTION BOX

Q.—I am building a new home and would like to know if the walls should be plastered after the wood floor and interior woodwork is installed.

A.—No. By all means have the rooms plastered and dried out as thoroughly as possible before installing the interior woodwork and the flooring. Otherwise the wood, which has been thoroughly dried, may absorb dampness from the plaster, causing it to swell. Furthermore, installing the wood after the plaster is dry will prevent any possibility of discoloration by the action of lime fumes. It is advisable to have all masonry as dry as possible before installing dry wood.

Q.—How can I keep rain and snow water which descends through the downspout from seeping down the outside of the basement walls and penetrating into the basement?

A.—It is desirable to connect the downspouts with a storm sewer. When this cannot be done, then splash blocks, consisting of concrete or other durable materials, should be placed under the end of the downspouts. They should slope away from the house and be of sufficient length so as to carry the water far from the wall.

Q.—How can I prevent my roof from sagging?

A.—Braces or collar ties should be added if the rafter span is too long. It is often necessary for rafters to support tremendous loads, especially in regions of heavy snowfalls. Unless the rafters are braced the roof may also sag because of structural weakening at the joints when subjected to heavy windstorms.

Q.—What kinds of wood nail best without danger of splitting?

A.—The nail-holding ability of various kinds of wood depends as much on the size of the nail as the kind of wood. In general, woods that are hard hold nails best, but require the use of smaller nails to prevent them from splitting when the nails are driven through the wood. On the other hand, woods that are soft are less likely to split when the nails are driven through them, and for that reason larger nails, which have greater holding power than smaller nails, may be used.

HOUSING HINTS

Shower Comfort

Probably nothing rejuvenates the tired business man or worker or affords more pleasure and enjoyment to the children on a hot, sultry day than a good shower bath. Showers may be installed under the Modernization Credit Plan of the Federal Housing Administration.

Rewire For Safety

The insulation on electric wires laid under rugs receives considerable wear, and may break and result in a severe and dangerous fire. Such danger can be largely eliminated by rewiring the home to provide for a sufficient number of outlets for all lighting and power accessories, including lamps, radio, toaster, and other appliances.

Paint For Light

It is good practice to apply a white or very light-colored finish in painting light shafts, inside courts, ventilated skylights, and other walls which enclose areas within or between buildings and which contain openings intended to admit sunlight or daylight. This will make possible a maximum of light reflection to the interior. A dark red light shaft for example, will only reflect about 15 to 20 percent of the light that enters it, while a reflection value as high as 80 percent may be obtained in a shaft painted with a white or light-colored paint.

Rotting Shingles Dangerous

No matter how attractive the home my be the final point of judgement is the roof. Shingles that are rotting and curling not only are unsightly but constitute a grave danger in case of fire.

Clean Catch Basin

This is a good time of year to have the catch basin in the house sewer line cleaned. Periodical cleaning is important.

Putty Up Holds

For those cracks and small openings surrounding the holes in walls for pipes or wires entering from outdoors, bituminous putty should be used as a filler to prevent the infiltration of water. It is an elastic bond little affected by temperature and vibration.

Modernization Plan Increases Rentals

Tulsa, Okla.—Modernization of a rental property here materially increased its rental value to its owner.

A woman whose name is on file at the Tulsa better-housing office repaired and modernized a house she owned, being inspired by the better-housing program. Previous to modernization she had received $10 a month rent. Now she is getting $25 a month for the property and was recently offered $35 a month.

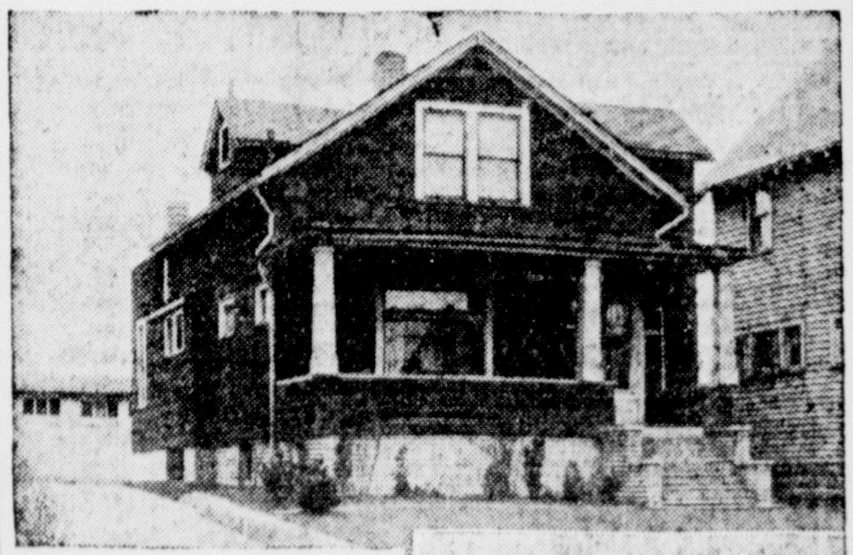
Effective Modernization



While there has been little architectural change in the house shown above, the transformation is marked. Note the new front porch with the dignified brick foundation and steps. Windows have been widened both upstairs and downstairs to provide better light and ventilation. Sturdy columns now support the porch roof. New roofing and two new chimneys, as well as general landscaping improvements, also add to the modern appearance effected with an outlay well within the bounds of modernization credit.

MAKE YOUR GRASS HELP YOU CHOKE OUT WEEDS!

● Grass roots become active earlier in the spring than weed roots. By giving your lawn a square meal as soon as the frost is out of the ground, you can give the grass such a quick, healthy start that weeds will find little room to grow.
But it takes a very thick turf and a deep, matted root system to choke out weeds. You can have this kind of grass only by feeding a complete, balanced plant food, such as Vigoro.
With Vigoro you take no chances. It supplies all the food elements growing things need from the soil. It is sanitary, odorless, easy to use. Economical, because its results are sure.

BECAUSE of the enormous amount of hail damage done to the crops on the small intensively cultivated farms of southern Europe, "hail-shooting" devices became very popular with the farmers. Successful Party Held At Newberry

Newberry, Mich.—One of the prettiest and most successful parties ever held in this community took place on Friday night when the Juniors of the Newberry high school, and their guests attended the annual Junior Prom. Much of the success of the event is due to the care and cleverness of the class sponsor, Miss Lois Auten, home economics instructor. A music motif in which black and white, and musical scores were used as the scheme of decoration. The ceiling was canopied in black and white. Around the walls of the community building ball room ran a long frieze in which aniated notes and black silhouettes of musical instruments had been painted. Potted flowering plants and greens banked the stage from where the orchestra played and the dancing floor was divided from the gallery by a white fence behind which chairs, settees and floor lamps had been arranged. "Con" of the Sault furnished the music. The bright dresses of the girls and ladies mad the grand march one of exceeding beauty.

Pretty Helen Beaudin on the arm of the Junior Class President, Jack Brown led off the grand march at 11:00 p. m. There were eighty couples in the lines, and a large number of townspeople attended, filling the balcony to capacity. Financially, the event was also one of unusual success, the fine sum of $125 being taken in. Following were the committees:

Decoration: Pat Leonard, Margaret Case, Leo Smith and James Richey.

Furniture: Francis Detzler, Earl Kronquest, Hugh Orphan and Oscar Sundstrum.

Reception: Helen Beaudin and Jack Brown, Aletha Kerr and Robert Pell, Marvil Bohn and Earl Kronquest.

Refreshments: Elizabeth Ward, Esther Bellak, Margaret Cook and Tollorivo Honkonen.

Tickets: George Monk, Edith Norman and Leona Berry.

The freshmen class had charge of checks.

The Junior class wishes to take this method of thanking all of those who aided in making the ball a success; to the State Hospital officials for the use of the plants and greens, to the stores who gave liberal discounts, and to the many townspeople who lent furniture and lamps.

NEWBERRY LOCALS

Chain Letters Reach Munising

Munising, May 4—Many copies of the chain letters of the "National Prosperity Club" by which recipients are supposed to receive $1,500 for the investment of a dime have been received by Munising and Alger county residents.

The letters contain a list of five names. The recipient of the letter crosses off the name at the top of the letter and sends him a dime, at the same time inserting his name at the bottom of the list. He then sends five of these letters to friends whom he wishes prosperity to come to. When his name finally reaches the top of the letter then the dimes come pouring in. If the chain isn't broken he will eventually receive $1,500.

Damon Runyan, America's premiere sports wrater, who has written many motion picture successes in the past like "Lady for a Day," "Little Miss Marker," "Million Dollar Ransom" and many others, is the author of "Princess O'Hara."

Jean Parker is co-starred with Chester Morris, portraying the appealing role of the little "Princess," whom fate thrust into one of the most harrowing experiences of her young life.

Second Feature

"David Copperfield," immortal love story written by Charles Dickens with a cast of 65 stars is to be shown as a second feature. Included in some of the leading roles are W. C. Fields, Maureen O'Sullivan, Lionel Barrymore, Edna May Oliver and others.

DIRECTOR TO INSPECT HOME

R. M. Foley to View Remodeled House Here Wed'sday

Raymond M. Foley, director of the Federal Housing Administration in Michigan, will visit Delta county next Wednesday and will come to Gladstone to inspect the model home under construction.

At noon Wednesday Foley will speak at a luncheon meeting at the Sherman Hotel in Escanaba and will come to Gladstone following, arriving here probably around 3 o'clock. A reception committee will meet him at the home on Central avenue.

Gladstone citizens interested in the better housing movement are invited to attend the luncheon at Escanaba.

The home is rapidly nearing completion. Floors have been laid and the interior finishing is now being done by William Nelson and Oscar Olson. Plumbing fixtures have also been installed and when Mr. Foley visits here, the home is expected to be finished with the exception of the decorating.

When the home is completed, headquarters for a committee will be set up in it to push the plan for disposition of the structure.

Sixteenth Century Had Them All Beat For Bethwackmnet

Ann Arbor,—Merrie England, in the lusty days of Henry VIII, Will Shakespeare and Good Queen Bess, was probably the thumpingest, flailingest, battering and bumfeagling nation the world has ever known, judging from word research on the Early Modern English Dictionary being edited at the University of Michigan.

This discovery that the sixteenth century beats all as a banging time, grew out of a three letter word, "lam." "Lam," with the meaning of "to strike," first appears on the verbal field of battle in the middlesixteenth century. Writing in the Michigan Alumnus Quarterly, Dr. Leo L. Rockwell tells how the dictionary staff lashed and mauled their way through a tangle of words to isolate all forms of assault and battery.

Before 1200, they found, one gentleman minght only threaten to beat, buffet, fell, hit, knock, smite or thrash another gentleman. Before 1300, however, bob bounce, ding, dint, gird, squat and tap were added to the vocabulary of violence; while by 1475 such terms as bat, batter, bless, bunch, clap, clod, dab, flap, flash, hammer, lash, lay, on, maul, pop, rap, scour, staff, whip, crack, dress, flail, knap, nape, pash, pelt, skelp, spar and wale had appeared.

Then came the sixteenth century when apparently every solid Britisher must have spent a good share of his time in thumping, or at least threatening to thump, his neighbors. Blessed with a good memory, a subject of Queen Elizabeth might drub his enemy verbally with the following 83 types of mayhem: anoint, bang baste, bebang, bebat, bebaste, bebatter, becudgel, becurry, belam, belay, bepommel, besoop, beswaddle, beswap, bethump bethwack, box, breech, bum, bumbaste, bumfeagle, bumfeg, bumfiddle, canvass, chock, clapperclaw, claw, club, coil, colpheg, comb, cudgel, cuff, curry, douse, ferule, filch, fillip, firk, fish, flip, flirt, gag, jerk, jut, kemb, knack, lace, lam, lamback, lambskin, lick, lumb, nevel, pat, pay, pummel, punch, ribbaste, ribroast, shock, souse, slash, slat, stab, swaddle, swash, swinge, taw, thump, thwack, tick, tickle, tip, trim, trounce, twig, walk, wherret, whisk, whop, yerk.

After that socking sixteenth, the succeeding centuries seem wan and weak. Only a few really good solid terms of bethwackment arose, such as belt, bebump, flay, lambaste, raddle, slam, sock, and whang. The coming of dictionaries and formal correctness slowed up the flow of homely language.

But the present century gives hope. "It is too early to make more than a surmise," says Dr. Rockwell, "but no devotes of the funnies can fail to read the signs of the times." In the vigorous style of modern fiction he also sees words which will force themselves into standard usage. "He that has ears for hearing, let him sharpen them and he will surely hear the grass growing in the field of verbal lambastics."

City Manager Buechner Turns in Resignation, Accepts Post in Ohio

F. R. Buechner, for the past 11 years city manager of Gladstone, has resigned his post here to accept a similar position at Piqua, Ohio. His resignation, effective May 25, was presented to the commission at a special meeting held last evening.

Piqua, the city to which Mr. Buechner will go, is an industrial city of approximately three times the population of Gladstone. According to the last U. S. census it had slightly over 16,000 population. It is within short distance of both Columbus and Dayton.

BUECHNER

The new post offers opportuntunity to the local manager, as was pointed out in his resignation. It was learned that an extremely attractive salary inducement said to be $5,000 per year, was offered.

Buechner's resignation, addressed to the mayor and city commission, follows:

"Gentlemen:

"I wish to advise that I have been offered a position as city manager of the city of Piqua, Ohio. Inasmuch as this is a larger opportunity, I herewith respectfully tender my resignation as city manager of Gladstone, effective May 25, 1935.

"In submitting my resignation, I should like to acknowledge your cooperation and that of all former city commissions during my 11 years of service here; also the loyal and splendid support of city employes and the general public.

"I commit to you a faithful, competent and dependable city personnel.

Respectfully submitted,
F. R. Buechner, city manager."

Buechner was educated in Municipal Administration at the University of Michigan graduating in 1921. During his last year he was granted an assistantship in political science and was engaged in research studies in the University Bureau of Government. For a short time after completing his academic work he engaged in editing "The City Manager Bulletin" (now Public Management Magazine). Later he was employed on the staff of the Detroit Bureau of Governmental Research.

Has Fine Record

In 1923 he was appointed city manager of the city of Grand Ledge, Mich., resigning after a year to come to Gladstone. Here he succeeded Clifford H. Ham, now with the Public Works administration at Washington, D. C. The story of his service here is a story of sound, efficient government and planning.

In 1930 Mr. Buechner was the winner of a city manager traveling fellowship award made by the International City Managers' association for the purpose of conducting research in the field of government. His survey on self-insurance of compensation by municipalities was published and circulated widely.

He has also been honored by being named a vice president on both the state City Managers' association and also the International City Managers' association.

Buechner is a member of the Gladstone Rotary club, City club, Masonic lodge and Legion post and took an active part and interest in the activities of the various organizations.

Diamond Ball Meet On Monday Evening

Prospective team managers and captains will meet Monday evening at the city hall for the purpose of mapping plans for a diamond ball league to be held here during the summer months. Walter Van De Weghe will preside as chairman.

Victor Srock will return to Iron River tonight after attending the funeral of his brother, Anthony Srock.

Conservation Dep't. To Furnish Seeds

With the demand for the food patch seed mixture increasing, the Game Division, Department of Conservation, advises those who have planned food and cover projects for game birds to send in their orders at once.

Applications for the desired seed supplies should be sent to R. W. Bennett, Michigan Farm Bureau, at 221 North Cedar street Lansing.

The seeds sell for 11 cents a pound in lots under 25 pounds and 10 cents a pound in lots over 25 pounds. The three percent sales tax and transportation costs are additional.

Only 4,000 pounds of the mixture were obtained this year, according to the game division. Last year approximately 3,800 pounds were distributed by the Farm Bureau. The game division will send instructions on planting of food patches to any person requesting them.

The famous lotus beds of Grass Lake, Lake county, Ill., were planted by fish-hawks and the plants are identical with those found in Egypt.

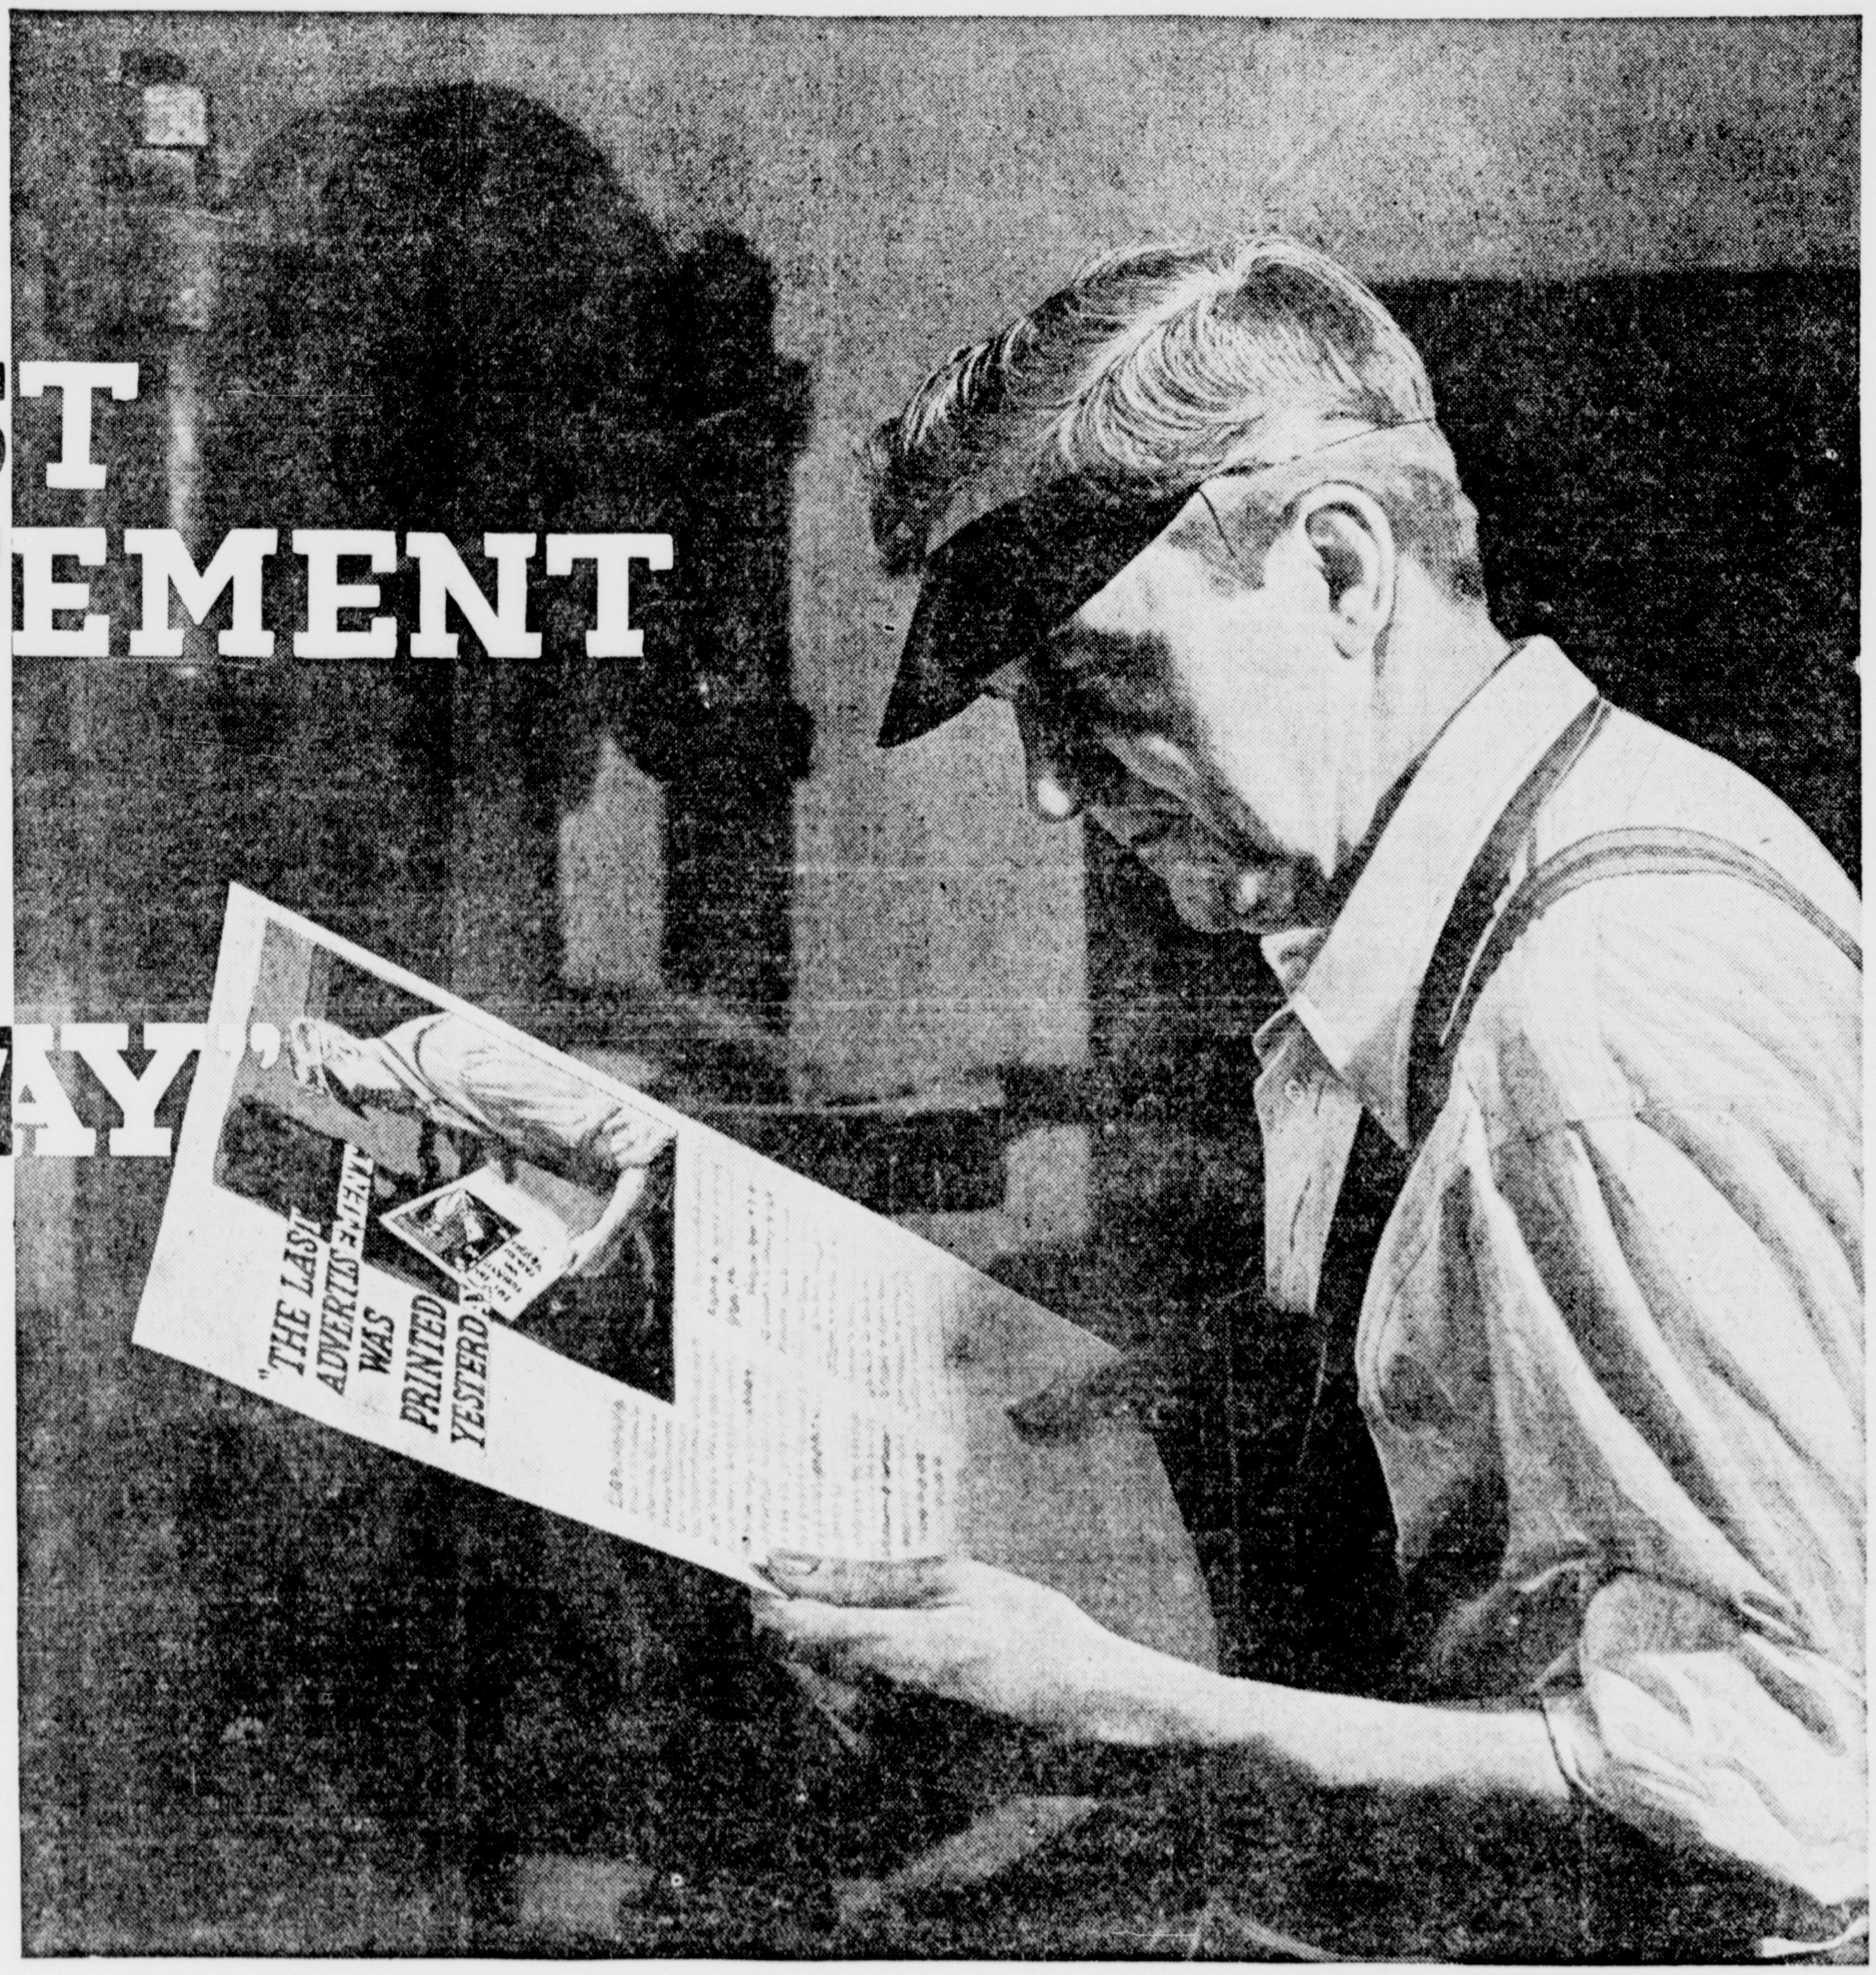
"THE LAST ADVERTISEMENT WAS PRINTED YESTERDAY"



What Would the World Be Like If It Were TRUE?

THE last advertisement was printed yesterday. You have cut it out and put it away to show your grandchildren. With it, a way of living as you knew it, has passed forever.

Tonight you will want to see a movie. You pull up to one—saw it last week. At another—but no, you don't like So-and-So's acting. Let's go home. It's too much gas and time to waste on a show. Next month half the theaters will close. Poor attendance.

Tomorrow you will want some groceries. You will go to the nearest grocery store and buy some. Rib Roast, perhaps, and lima beans. You won't hear until tomorrow night at the bridge table that the store just next door was having a "special" on rib roast and lima beans. Pretty soon your husband will wonder why the food bills are so high. The last advertisement was printed yesterday.

Next month is Aunt Jane's birthday. Well, if you think I'm going to spend half a day tramping from store to store looking for a gift that I used to find by turning a page—can't afford gifts anyway. We're spending money like water and living like poor folks . . .

Old car's wearing out. Can't afford a new one . . . Chevies and V-8's are both $1600 . . . demand's fallen off . . . they've had to up prices to meet plant expenses. Most of the others have closed down . . . don't know how the government will feed all the new unemployed.

Fellow in Milwaukee is inventing an air conditioner to sell for $50. No one will hear of it. You will never see it. What is air conditioning anyway? The last advertisement was printed yesterday.

Advertising has brought us many things. Finer cars, better homes, silly fads and wonderful inventions that have made life easier—and longer. Advertising is no unmixed blessing. But it has helped give America a standard of living unmatched in any other place and time. That standard of living should persist as long as people have wants to fill and money to spend and eyes to read with.

It will persist only so long as the presses keep rolling.

PLAN ROTARY ENTERTAINMENT

Variety of Amusement for Convention Goers May 13-14

There will be entertainment aplenty for Rotarians who go to Escanaba to attend the annual convention of the Wisconsin-Upper Michigan Rotary district on May 13 and 14, according to the announcement of Mike Heinz, "On to Escanaba" chairman of the Manistique Rotary club.

Fine music will feature the various convention sessions, with such well known upper Michigan artists as Susan Semer, Rose Bink, Mrs. Harold Gasman, Elizabeth Miller and Brit Hall as vocal soloists. The Escanaba and Gladstone high school bands and the Northern State Teachers' college octette also will appear on the program.

The Governor's Ball on Monday evening at Terrace Gardens will be the greatest social event of the season. Charles Brinckley's collegiate orchestra from Appleton, Wis., will furnish the dance music and entertainment specialties. Of special interest to bachelors is the announcement from the program committee that one hundred of Escanaba's prettiest girls will act as hostesses at the governor's party.

If the Rotarians want more than intellectual diversion there will be provided also such he-man pastimes as golf and fishing. The Escanaba Country club's beautiful course is all in readiness to accommodate the visiting golfers, and the elusive speckled trout are cavorting about the brooks and streams in the vicinity. Arrangements have been made to have John L. Judson, veteran fisherman, and his corps of able guides take Rotarians to the best fishing holes. Sight-seeing trips to such scenic spots as old Fayette, Big Spring, Pictured Rocks and the Hiawatha National Forest are also contemplated by a considerable number of Rotarians, who are planning to extend their stay in the upper peninsula. Educational tours to sawmills, veneer plants, paper mills and other industries will be arranged.

The PEN that DEFIED the SWORD
INK

THE pen proved its superiority over the sword when the great Spanish author, Vicente Blasco Ibanez, wielded it in defiance of the monarchy and with such vehemence that it inspired his countrymen to rebel. A voluntary exile, refusing to return to Spain until the king was dethroned, he spent his wealth and literary skill to accomplish that end. Unfortunately, he died in 1928, three years before a republic was proclaimed.

REPUBLICA ESPAÑOLA

The republic, however, remembered him by issuing a stamp in his honor the first year of its existence.

Send-Dime Chain Letters Pouring Into Manistique

Copies of the "Prosperity Club" chain letter, which holds out to the recipient the promise of a $1,562.50 return for the investment of a dime have been received in fairly large numbers by Manistique residents during the past few days.

The letters are headed by five names and addresses. The name at the bottom of the list is the sender of the letter. Instructions to the receiver are to cross off the name of the person at the top of the list and send that person a dime, then insert the recipient's own name at the bottom of the list and make five copies of the letter, sending each one out to a friend.

The theory is that eventually, the name at the bottom of the list wil reach the top, and then the dimes will start rolling in—if the chain isn't broken in the meantime.

What Happens When You Make A Deposit?

Somebody once said: "There are three American institutions upon which the stability of the nation depends—the Government, the Insurance Companies and the Banks."

Depositing money in a sound bank like the First National is, indeed, similar in many ways to buying a treasury bond or an insurance policy. For in each case the money you turn over is safely reinvested—in public works, industries, in homes, in commercial enterprises. In a word, the instant you deposit them your funds become a part of the great river of credit that turns the mill wheels of the nation.

In safety and quick "cashability", too, bank savings compare only with government bonds and life insurance. That is why so many people are using all three together—are saving their money here to buy "baby bonds" and to pay their life insurance premiums.

New York, May 4 (AP)—Gains of 1 to 7 points by preferred stocks of sugar companies set a bright example for other issues today and stocks coasted along for moderate gains on the New York stock exchange.

Analysts who studied the industrial situation found the trifling decline in automobile output shown by Cram's estimate a reason for cheer. The drop of only 105 cars from the previous week's peak of 110,970 cars was attributed both to seasonal influence and to the labor trouble in one section of the industry.

Another factor in Wall Street calculations was the senate's support of the amendment to the Vinson bill designed to effect immediate cash payment of bonuses to world war veterans. While none ventured to guess the net effect on the market, it was reported some withheld commitments pending final solution of the issue.

Faster Trading

Measured by the Associated Press average of sixty stocks the market moved up from 40.1 to 40.3. The trading pace on an hourly basis for the short session was somewhat faster than on Friday. Volume totaled 474,490 shares against 953,050 for the preceding session.

Gains in sugar shares, brokers said, reflected recent rise in the staple, and improvement in the sugar situation in Cuba. Cuban American Sugar, preferred, ran up 9 points to a new high on the year and closed with a 7 point gain.

Preferred issues in other sections of the market put on a good show, several bounding ahead for gains of 1 to 5 points.

Pace-setters among the senior shares were General Railway Signal with a gain of 5 points; American Smelting preferred, up 3; Federal Light & Traction, up 4; and Revere Brass, up 3.

With exception of Allied Chemical and Consolidated Gas which each picked up a point most market leaders shifted only fractionally higher.

Trading in bonds was marked by softness throughout the government list while other departments showed gains clearly in the majority. Commodities put in a fairly calm day. Wheat finished with losses of 7-8 to 1 1-8 cents. Corn was unchanged to a shade lower. Cotton ended 15 to 50 cents a bale higher.

In the foreign exchange market the pound sterling was up ½ cent to $4.84 while the French franc eased .00 1-8 of a cent to 6.59½ cents. Other monies were quiet and narrow.

Steel production, electric power the movement of freight and retail sales all drifted somewhat lower.

BY G. A. PHILLIPS
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, May 4 (AP)—The bond market developed into something of a two-sided affair today with corporate issues selling generally higher and U. S. governments distinctly soft.

Another special movement in low-priced utility bonds was the outstanding feature of the session. Some of these, including two issues of New Orelans Public Service 5s were especially firm. Junior railroad obligations likewise displayed a steady tone but some of the better known prime investment loans were backward on circulation of more gossip concerning refunding plans.

Other than announcement that the treasury would jack the price of the new 2 7-8 percent bonds which will be exchanged for the called first Liberties up 50 cents a hundred on May 7, there was nothing in the day's news to account for the further dip in government issues, most of which have been in supply for two days in succession. It was pointed out, however, that during the current week treasury loans rushed up in vigorous fashion, the majority of individual issues attaining new highs on two successive days, and a certain amount of profit taking was a natural outcome. With one or two exceptions, losses today averaged 2-32nds to 4-32nds among the Liberties and treasuries, while some minor improvement was shown by some of the indirect obligations.

In the corporate list further gains were made by American Water Works 6s at 80, Columbia Gas 5s at 50, Laclede Gas 5½s at 66¼, Chile Copper 5s at 93½, Penn Dixie 6s at 85¼, Baltimore & Ohio 6s at 71, Great Northern 4½s at 72 and New Haven 6s at 40. Loans of the various traction companies in New York City rested somewhat after the strenuous performance Friday, but there were isolated cases of strength again, including Manhattan Railway first 4s, which ended more than a point higher at 58½.

Among the high-priced bonds showing slight recessions were Santa Fe 4s at 109 3-8, Consolidatede Gas 5½s at 106 and Peoples Gas 5s at 105.

In the foreign division activity was restricted and price changes narrow. German government bonds were more steady and some of the country's private obligations again showed improvement, including the agricultural bank 6s. Austrian 7s also were higher.

Transfers aggregated $6,569,000, par value, compared with $6,721,000 last Saturday. The Associated Press averages were .5 of a point higher to .2 of a point lower.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

New York, May 4—Foreign exchange steady. Great Britain in dollars, others in cents. Great Britain demand, 4.84, cables 4.84; 60-day bills, 4.82 7-8; France demand, 6.59½, cables, 6.59½; Italy demand, 8.23½, cables, 8.23½.

Demands: Belgium, 16.93; Germany, 40.24; Holland, 67.59; Norway, [illegible]; Sweden, 24.96; Denmark, 21.62; Finland, 2.15; Switzerland, [illegible]; [illegible] Portugal, 4.40½; Greece, .93 5-8; Poland, 18.[illegible]; Czechoslovakita, 4.18; Jugoslavia, 2.29.

Changes Are Made In Curriculum At Lawrence College

Appleton, Wis., May 4—Beginning next fall two major changes will be offered in the curriculum of Lawrence college. One change will allow the correlation of the work in the field of music, art, and drama, while the other will further the work in tutorial study allowing greater opportunities for individualized instruction.

Starting with the fall term, Lawrence is presenting a limited experimental program of tutorial instruction for sophomores. There is to be one tutorial group chosen which will consist of about thirty representative sophomores to be placed under the guidance of a special tutor who will advise and guide them in their other scholastic work. The tutorial will be taken for credit and will be substituted for one of the student's regular courses.

The primary aim of this program is to develop further the student's critical and generalizing capacities and to help him organize his total educational experience into a significant interrelated whole. To this end the tutor will place deliberate and conscious stress on these aims but will attempt to further them largely by means of and in conjunction with the student's other courses, helping him to relate these to one another, to criticize ideas that arise in them, and to formulate sound judgments from the knowledge they provide.

The second change is the development of a new department of fine arts integrating the work offered to college students in the field of music, art, and drama. It expands the offerings somewhat, particularly in the field of music, and adapts them to the particular needs of candidates for the B. A. degree.

North Africa dancing dervishes have been known to spin like tops for more than 1000 revolutions without pausing.

Termites, or "white ants," are an important item on the diet of African natives, and battles often are fought for possession of the giant ant hills.

Detroit Raps Out 5 to 2 Decision Over Boston

JOE SULILVAN WORKS IN BOX

Win Is Fourth Straight For Tigers; Walker Leads Attack

Detroit, May 4 (AP)—After being rained into idleness three days running, the Detroit Tigers came back today to rap out a 5 to 2 decision over the Boston Red Sox. It was Detroit's fourth straight win and its first test against an eastern foe.

Gerald Walker, Mickey Cochrane's hard-hitting outfielder, paced the Detroit attack on Wesley Ferrell with two doubles in four trips, driving in two runs and scoring one himself.

Little Joe Sullivan, the rookie left hander from Hollywood, went the route for Detroit to win his second game in three starts, limiting the Sox to eight scattered blows.

Sullivan weakened temporarily in the fifth and walked a man with the sacks full to give Boston its first score. With one out in the fifth Solters singled. Almada hit safely through the box, and Dahlgren was given a free trip to fill the bases when Sullivan hit him on the arm. The young southpaw walked Wes Ferrell to force Solters in from third.

Wes Ferrell opened the eighth with a single and was lifted for a pinch runner Legett. The latter reached third on a double by Werber and scored while Gehringer was tossing out Roy Johnson. Hockette finished on the hill for Boston.

Walker's first double and Owen's single gave Detroit a tally in second. and another in the third when Cochrane singled and counted on Gehringer's double. Two more crossed the plate in fifth on singles by Gehringer and Rogell and Walker's second double. Goslin doubled in the seventh to score Rogell who was on with a single.

Radcliff's Home Run in Seventh With One on Deciding Factor

Chicago, May 4 (AP)—Rip Radcliff's third home run of the season with a man on in the seventh inning today gave Chicago a 5 to 4 victory over the Washington Nationals and accounted for Bump Hadley's first defeat of the campaign.

Hadley, who had won his first three starts, had a 4 to 3 lead when Radcliffe's long blow drove in Bud Hafey ahead of him. Hafey ran for Mule Haas who batted for Les Tietje. Tietje was credited with his first victory of the year although Wyatt pitched the last two innings.

The triumph kept the White Sox' perfect record at home intact

St. Louis Defeats Boston Braves, 3-0

Boston, May 4 (AP)—Bill Walker, slim left hander of the world champion St. Louis Cardinals pitched a fine three-hit game today and led the way to a 3 to 0 victory over the Braves in the delayed series opener.

Chalking up his second triumph of the season, Walker allowed only one man get beyond first base. Jack Rothrock tried to make a shoestring catch of Joe Coscarart's pop fly in the fifth and Coscarart, playing third in place of Pinky Whitney who is ill, got around to the far corner.

The game started out as a battle between Walker and Cantwell but the pitching duel broke wide open in the seventh when the Cards combined four of their nine hits with an error by Babe Ruth to get their three runs.

Illinois Noses Out Michigan Nine, 1-0

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 4 (AP)—Illinois retained the baseball leadership of the Western conference here today by defeating University of Michigan in a tight pitcher's battle, 1 to 0.

Hale "Swede" Swanson, on the mound for the Illini, held Michigan to four scattered hits. Berger "Swede" Larson, the Wolverine hurler allowed only six safe blows but three of them were grouped in the sixth inning for the only run of the game.

With one man down, Lewis, Illinois third baseman, worked Larson for a walk in the sixth. Successive singles by Franklin, Moyer and Swikel produced the counter.

"Sez Me"

by Ken Gunderman

The organization of the new Tri-county baseball league is the biggest step taken in recent years to place baseball back in its rightful position as the outstanding summer sport with attendant popularity in this section of the upper peninsula. A complete lack of unity among baseball leaders of this district has been a major factor in the decline in popularity of baseball in this district, but baseball fan interest never has actually died out here. If all the baseball leaders remain united under the new Tri-county league setup, there is little need to worry about the popular return of the national sport in this region.

—o—

In order to preserve the league and its aims, adequate rules must be adopted and rigidly enforced. The petty motives which have characterized baseball interests in this region in the past must go and in their place must be a broader aim, a desire to do something constructive for the sport. The league, comprising as it does 16 teams, representing a territory as far south as Daggett and as far north and east as Trenary, offers an excellent vehicle for the healthful promotion of a worthwhile sport. The cooperation of all, team managers, players, league officers and fans, is essential if everything the circuit offers is to be realized.

—o—

League officers will meet Monday to make the first draft of the league rules and by-laws. An earnest effort will be made to write a code which is far reaching and which is protective to the best interests of all concerned. This tentative draft will be presented to the team managers early in the week. A schedule of games for the first half of the season also will be laid before the managers at their meeting. Managers are urged to expedite the formation of their teams and to be prepared to submit their player lists at an early date.

—o—

Next Sunday two Escanaba teams, the Athletics and the Bevenocs, will meet at the Wells diamond to determine the eighth position in the north-east division of the league. There is room in the circuit for only one of these teams and the game next week will decide which team will get that franchise. Interest in that game is to be exceedingly keen and that important battle offers an excellent opportunity to create popularity for the league. The elimination contest should send the new organization off with a flying start, preparing the fans for the real opening the following Sunday.

MICHIGAN WINS IN TRACK MEET

Ward Out With Injuries; Minnesota Badly Beaten

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 4 (AP)—University of Michigan's powerful, well balanced track team swamped Minnesota in a dual meet today by 105 to 21. Wolverines' outstanding star, Willis Ward was unable to compete because of a leg injury, but Michigan nevertheless took 12 first places in 14 events.

Sam Stoller, Michigan sophomore, was high scorer with first places in the century, 220-yard dash and broad jump.

Michigan counted six slams, taking all three places in the mile, 440, high jump, half mile, broad jump and discus throw.

Wayne Slocum won the two-mile run for the Gophers' only victory in the track events. The other Minnesota first was scored by D. Krezowski in the shot put. Bill Freimuth of Minnesota had been favored to win the discus throw, but failed to qualify.

In addition to their 12 first places, the Wolverines scored 12 seconds and nine thirds. Minnesota had two firsts, two seconds and five thirds.

Most of the competition in the meet was among Michigan athletes battling their teammates for first places. Clayton Brelsford, Wolverine sophomore, scored an upset in the mile by defeating Harvey Smith, who had been rated number one miler, in easy style. Another upset was Paul Gorman's win over Howard Davidson in the half mile. Gorman displayed a tremendous kick in the stretch and turned in his best time to date, 1 minute 55.6 seconds.

Slocum ran a great race in the two mile, pulling away to a 25-yard lead during the second mile, which Walter Stone of Michigan could not overcome in his kick at the finish. Slocum won by two yards.

BIG SIX STANDINGS

(By The Associated Press)

Jimmie Foxx turned in a remarkable hitting feat yesterday, connecting for four hits including his sixth home run, in four official times at bat and scoring five runs. But he couldn't capture the lead in the Big Six or even the American League as he raised his average 46 points to .434. Gerald Walker of Detroit, who hadn't been considered a "regular," finally forced recognition as two hits in four times up brought his average to .516. Arky Vaughan with two blows out of four, moved up four points in the National League group to pass Shanty Hogan, who was kept idle by an injury. The standing:

MUNISING CLUB SEES BIG YEAR

Good Baseball Lineup Is Promised, Team in League

Munising, May 3—The Munising baseball crew will 'go to bat' this season with one of the finest teams to wear the Munising colors for some time. The officials of the club, Ralph W. Jackson, N. J. Niks and E. L. Nelson are making a survey to determine the financial backing that can be obtained for the purchase of uniforms and the necessary equipment.

Munising has a squad of 12 experienced men under the management of Steve Karbon, former manager and veteran second sacker, and Felix Boyak, one of the outstanding catchers of the peninsula.

The team is especially strong on hurlers this season. The pitching crew being composed of "Danny" Malone, George "Grouche" Miron and Kukulku, all veterans. Boyak will be on the receiving end with Hank Lasak as substitute and spare fielder.

Petrie and Wrena are candidates for the first base position. Karben will play at second base. Vern Beattie or Frank Genry will hold down the short stop position and Ten Tunteri or Freddie Arber will complete the infield lineup by playing on third. The outfield will be composed of Jim Schuller, Johnny Blizel, Jay Dornbecker and "Pedro" Depew.

Munising will play its first home game with Gwinn on Sunday, June 2. The league includes the following teams: Marquette Ishpeming, Negaunee, Gwinn, North Lake, Republic, Chatham and Munising.

The schedule is to be divided into two rounds. The first round will start on May 26 and will close on July 7. The second round will be approximately the same time as the first. Winners of each round will stage a play off series at the end of the season. The entry fee for the teams participating is $12.50.

Athletics Pound Cleveland Indians

Cleveland, May 4 (AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics reached out of the American league basement today to administer a surprise beating to the pace-setting Indians, 12 to 1.

Behind the hurling of the veteran LeRoy Mahaffey, the invaders found three Tribe pitchers for 17 hits. Mahaffey confined the Indians to seven safely separated bingles.

Jimmy Foxx, Athletics slugger, shifted from behind the bat to third base. His contribution to the one-sided affair included his sixth home run of the season, a triple and two singles.

Vosmik, who had doubled, scored for Cleveland's lone marker on Averill's single in the third. Mel Harder, the Tribe's curve ball ace, was taken from the box at the end of the third.

KIPKE'S SQUAD LOOKS BETTER

10,000 Guests Get Peek At Wolverine Grid Material

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 4. (AP)—Harry Kipke had on display today the group of freshmen who are looked upon to lead Michigan out of the football wilderness next fall, and sent ten thousand guests away feeling that things will be better for the Wolverines.

Coach Kipke was optimistic after the game in which the blue jersied team which might be termed the regulars, defeated the yellows by 34 to 6.

"They didn't look so bad," said Kipke. "The backs are much better than usual at this time of the year, and several linemen showed possibilities. We may win some games next fall."

Today's scrimmage brought to a close spring football activities here except for the annual award of the Chicago alumni trophy to the outstanding freshman. On the basis of their play today the leading candidates for the honor, which was won by Matt Patanelli last spring, probably are George Gehesquire, end from Grosse Pointe; Bob Cooper, Detroit; Stark Ritchie, Battle Creek, and John Smithers, Elkhart, Ind., the latter three are halfbacks.

Ritchie played on the losing yellow team today, but did a great job of ball carrying, forward passing, punting and tackling. The first touchdown was made by his team and resulted from a 17 yard run followed by a 27 yard run by the Battle Creek boy.

The wide margin between the teams was largely a matter of Capt. Bill Renner's throwing arm. The first counter for the blues' came on a pass from Renner to Ghesquire who lateraled to Cooper for a 37 yard gain and a touchdown. Renner passed to Smithers for the second blue touchdown, to Ghesquire for the third. Another pass from Renner to Ghesquire put the ball on the yellow three yard line and led to another counter. Chris Everhardus threw a forward pass to Smithers for the final touchdown.

DODGERS LOSE TO PITTSBURGH

Blanto Wins Brilliant Pitching Duel With Zachary, 1-0

Brooklyn, May 4. (AP)—Pittsburgh's pair of aces, Darrell Elijah (Cy) Blanton and Floyd (Arky) Vaughan, got together to produce a 1 to 0 victory over the Dodgers today and even the series at one all.

Blanton turned in another brilliant mound performance for his fourth straight hurling triumph. allowing only three hits and fanning six. Vaughan ruined old Tom Zachary's side of the pitching duel by belting his fourth home run of the season on the first pitch of the ninth inning.

The Bucs followed Vaughan's blow with three more hits in the ninth but a double play prevented further scoring. Blanton was in trouble only in the fourth when a flashy stop by Pie Traynor on Tony Cuccinello's drive pulled him out.

Plan to Reorganize Distirct for Better Representation

More than 600 teachers from every county in the Upper Peninsula attended a meeting held yesterday afternoon at the Escanaba junior high school for the purpose of forming preliminary plans for reorganization of M. E. A. districts in the upper peninsula.

The reorganization plans call for the combining of counties and districts whereby the upper peninsula will get the greatest possible number of delegates to the general M. E. A. assembly. Under the present set-up, the upper peninsula has 22 delegates as compared with approximately 400 from the lower peninsula. Under the proposed reorganization, this part of the state would have 18 whereas the lower peninsula would have but 162, which would greatly reduce the ratio. This reduced ratio would enable the upper peninsula schools to have a better representation in the assembly.

The constitution of the M. E. A. provides for one delegate from each district for every 200 members or major portion of 200 members in the association. Under the reorganization of districts under construction, the set-up can be changed so that the ratio will be 18—162 rather than 22—400.

Members of the M. E. A. who reside in Delta county will hold an organization meeting Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the junior high school.

Child Specialist Most Interested In "Quins"

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

Primary interest in the Dionne quintuplets is held by doctors and welfare workers. Certainly, specialists in feeding and rearing of infants are going to learn a great deal from these babies.

Already they have learned much concerning the factors necessary to rear premateure children to successful life. It is well known that the mortality among premature babies is excessive in spite of the best possible care.

Mortality among twins and triplets in premature births is enormous. Survival of these babies is characterized as phenomenal.

A premature baby is not developed sufficiently in its nervous system to provide for the automatic regulation of its breathing or of its body temperature. Its feeding and digestive powers are very feeble. Furthermore, the premature baby is likely to succumb to any one of a number of infections to which it is easily exposed.

Successful rearing of the quintuplets depended on the provision of the right kind of air, the maintenance of proper body temperature, the feeding of a sufficient quantity of properly collected and preserved human milk, and extraordinary vigilance in preventing development of infections.

What has been accomplished for these babies may well be a lesson to parents throughout the world as to the type of care necessary to be given every infant so that he may have the best possible opportunity for health and successful growth.

While the quintuplets appear to be identical, it will, of course, require extended scientific study to determine whether any two of them are identical or whether all five are identical.

If it should turn out that some are identical and the others fraternal, that is, that several came from one egg cell and the others from individual egg cells, the studies will furnish most extraordinary information.

No doubt, as these infants grow, they will be subjected to serious study not only of their physical characteristics, such as their sizes and measurements and thumb prints or other physical formations of their bodies, but also of their mental development.

Will one learn faster than the others? Will one develop musical talents and the others ability to paint or to dance?

They are going to have a life that is to be lived in a glass house, with all the world studying through special lenses.

Diet May Help Cranky Wives; Stop Divorces

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

Philadelphia, May 4 (AP)—Some of the wives who go to Reno may be headed off by putting them on a diet of three meals a day, with between-meal snacks of milk with a banana or orange juice.

This will cure them of certain kinds of domestic tantrums, which are not, as they believe, due to soul troubles, but to hyperinsulism, a newly defined disease described to the American college of physicians here today.

A promising remedy for diabetes, an extract of the duodenum, which may be much cheaper than insulin, was also reported to the college.

Hyperinsulism was reported by Seale Harris, M. D., professor emeritus of medicine of the University of Alabama as "a new disease entity."

It is the opposite of diabetes, a sort of black-sheep twin. Dr. Harris said it has been mistaken for many sorts of diseases, including insanity.

Sufferers from the mild type of hyperinsulism, he said, have called it "hunger disease" because the victim frequently becomes excessively hungry, weak and nervous three or four hours after meals.

Among the cases he cited was the wife of a man who came to him because the lady was throwing dishes at him, between meals, often about 11:00 in the morning, wouldn't permit him to have a stenographer, and was making life miserable. The husband feared his wife must go to an insane asylum.

Her trouble was diagnosed as hyperinsulism. She was given the diet treatment, and stopped throwing dishes, lost her jealousy of stenographers and became a happy wife in a contented home.

The duodenal extract for diabetes was reported by Garfield Duncan, M. D., of the Pennsylvania hospital.

Names of Streams And Lakes To Be Straightened Out

From time to time confusion and misunderstandings arise in different parts of the state over designations of lakes and streams and because of a similarity of names.

The State Board of Geographic Names was created several years ago to correct misunderstandings and eliminate confusion. Dozens of requests made through county boards of supervisors have been acted upon by the state board and referred to the national board for final sanction, according to the Department of Conservation.

The board will send to any group of directly interested persons the necessary forms and information as to procedure for making name changes that would serve to clarify the designations of local lakes, streams or well-known geographic points of interest and importance.

Application should be made through the county clerk and the board of supervisors, according to legal procedure, and then submitted to the state board through the Department of Conservation.

Much confusion persists still over the correct pronunciation and spelling of "Mackinac Island" and "Straits of Mackinac." The proper pronunciation of these names as well as the spelling were established by the state and national boards several years ago. The pronunciation is the same as "Mackinaw" City and all three names herewith are spelled correctly. Members of the State Board are: Dr. George N. Fuller, secretary of the State Historical Commission, chairman; Dr. Richard A. Smith, state geologist, and L. R. Schoenmann, who is on leave of absence.

HOOK CONTENDS BERRY DOOMED

Dismissal of Sawyer Is Also Hinted by Congressman

Washington, May 4. (AP)—Representative Hook (D-Mich.) said today that as a result of an investigation of the administration of relief in the Upper Peninsula of Michigan he had been informed by the federal investigator that the removal of at least two relief officials there would be recommended.

Hook said the investigation, conducted at his request, had been made by John McEwen, who was sent to the scene from the Washington relief headquarters.

Relief administration officials could not be reached immediately for a statement as to whether a change would be made in the set-up in that section.

"McEwen told me," Hook said, "that he would recommend the removal of Walter M. Berry, relief director for the Upper Peninsula district. He also said he would recommend the removal of K. I. Sawyer, acting director of relief in Marquette."

The representative asserted McEwen had given him an "adverse" report on Herman W. Rahn, county relief director at Houghton, Mich.

In the course of the investigation, Hook quoted McEwen as saying, he believed the expenditure of $43,000 on a playground at Ishpeming was "illegal" on the ground the property involved was owned by a mining company and could be claimed, with all improvements, by the owner at the expiration of the lease.

Facts on this case would be submitted to the FERA legal division, Hook said.

"It all means," he concluded, "that if the administration carries out the report made to me after the investigation, there will be a complete clean-up in the relief situation of the Upper Peninsula of Michigan."

Hook added McEwen had said he did not believe William Haber, state relief director, had been fully apprised of the conditions existing in the Upper Peninsula.

Later, Aubrey Williams, assistant relief administrator, said the Michigan situation was being investigated by Howard Hunter, regional field representative.

Williams added that Hunter was now in Michigan but had not advised Washington on the Berry and Sawyer situation.

Human Skin Covers 18.8 Square Feet, Science Discovers

Ann Arbor,—There are approximately 18.8 square feet of skin on the average human body, according to a new method for solving this complicated mathematical-medical problem, described by Dr. John C. Bugher, of the University of Michigan Medical School, at the Detroit meeting of the American Society for Experimental Pathology.

No one had to be skinned to determine this finding—the new method involves simply a camera and a mathematical formula. The results are accurate within one or two per cent, as compared with error allowances of from six to sixteen per cent for systems of measurement hitherto used.

In the method developed by Drs. Bugher and Drummond, a patient is photographed in both front and side silhouetts. The prints are then made to a convenient standardized size. Then both the front and side silhouettes are traced around their borders by a planimeter, which automatically calculates the area within. A second trip is made around the perimeters with a chartometer, in turn automatically registering the length of the border lines.

Since the photographs are of a known size, the measurements from the planimeter and chartometer can be substituted for certain x and y values in a formula developed by Dr. Bugher and Drummond. This formula, in turn, is based on a considerably more complicated, but even more accurate, area measurement system which is practically useful mainly as the basis for the method described.

Because it is quick and calls for only simple instruments and calculations which any good algebra student can make, the new skin area measurement system is expected to have considerable value to physicians and hospitals in treating diseases of the thyroid and other ductless glands. In these, and many others, an accurate knowledge of the body surface is necessary for the estimation of physical heat production and radiation, or basal metabolism. Another value of the method is the fact that patients of odd sizes or shapes are no handicap. Previously a patient with an overstize "tummy," for instance, made all estimates doubtful.
